

Rebate deadline has been extended

The deadline for senior citizens and other eligible persons to apply for property tax and rent rebates has been extended to Dec. 31. The original deadline for the program, which is funded by state lottery profits, was June 30.

Rep. George C. Hasay said the extension is possible because profits from the state lottery have been sufficient to provide rebates to individuals who apply after the original deadline.

Those eligible for the rebates are individuals age 65 or over, widows and widowers age 50 and over and permanently disabled persons over age 18 who meet the income guidelines. The maximum eligible income for claimant and spouse is $11,999. Only one person per household may file.

The maximum amount of the rebate is $500. Those who receive rebates also automatically qualify for inflation dividends of up to $125.

The lawmaker said that income which must be reported includes salaries, wages, self-employment and rental income, veterans' disability payments, interest, dividends, social security (except Medicare), Supplemental Security Income, pensions or annuities, unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation, alimony and support payments, cash public assistance and railroad retirement benefits.

Also included are life insurance death benefits in excess of $5,000, all gifts of cash or property when the total value exceeds $300, the full amount of any realized capital gains and certain income from the sale of a home.

Applications for the rebate program are available at Hasay's district office at 2261 Sans Souci Parkway, Hanover Township, Wilkes-Barre, PA 18702.

Hasay added that legislation has been enacted which increases the maximum income limits for the rebate program. The measure applies to rebate applications filed in 1986. Those applications would provide rebates for property taxes or rent in lieu of property taxes that were paid in 1985.

Library receives grant

A $5,000 grant was awarded to the Children's Department of the Back Mountain Memorial Library this year by the State Library of Pennsylvania through the Library Services and Construction Act.

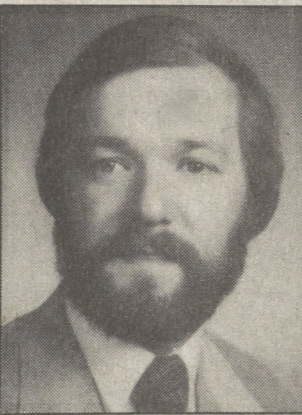

Mrs. Marilyn Rudolph, Children's Librarian, was able to purchase books, records, filmstrips, cassettes and audio-visual equipment to attract children from two to five years of age.

For the first time, a four-week Toddler Storytime was held for 11 two-year-olds and their parents.

Mrs. Joanne Katuna volunteered to take training and provide the leadership for this challenging activity offered in the Children's Room of the Library.

The materials made possible by the grant provided enrichment for the two existing Story Hours attended by three to five year olds under the direction of Mrs. Louise Roberts, Mrs. Millie Brody, Mrs. Jane Lasecki and Mrs. Nancy Garr.

Toddler Storytime and Story Hour will be offered again in September.

SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS

It's true that certain symptoms, such as headaches, neck pain, and numbness or tingling in the arms and legs can be a definite sign of nerve pressure. However, pain is very often the last sign to appear when a problem is present and the first sign to disappear when the problem is corrected by your chiropractor. Unfortunately we do not have a red light that goes off every time we have a bone out of proper alignment irritating a spine nerve. Often, by the time we notice pain, numbness, swelling or disease in our body, the spinal problem has already been inhibiting communications between the brain and body parts with resultant reduction of proper function.

The chiropractor is specially trained to locate and correct those misaligned spinal bones.
