DEAR "AUNT PATTY"

DEAR AUNT PATTY: I really got a kick out of the letter last week from "I.M. Crazy." Would you please put me in touch with her so I can meet them? Enclosed is my address. Thanks.

LIKES CRAZY HUMOR

DEAR HUMOR:

I do not have the address of I.M. Crazy but even if I did I could not divulge that information without his/her permission.

DEAR AUNT PATTY:

I have a recipe for a broccoli and cauliflower salad that may be the Vegetable Lover from last week would like. My family and friends certainly enjoy it.

C.M., HARVEYS LAKE

Broccoli-Cauliflower Salad
broccoli-1 bunch
cauliflower 1/2 head
10 slices of bacon
8-12 oz. cheddar cheese
Onion powder to taste
1/2 c. mayonnaise
1/2 c. sour cream
2 T. bacon fat
1/4 c. sugar

DEAR AUNT PATTY:

My husband and I have three beautiful adopted children which God has blessed us with. I am now pregnant and we are thrilled. We are having a difficult time dealing with the comments from people upon hearing our news. We have been told, "Boy, I bet you wish you would have waited," "The others won't compare with your own," "Don't you wish you could send the others back?" etc...The bad thing about it is the comments are usually made in front of our children. I see the sadness in their eyes when such ignorant things are said. We love our adopted children with all our hearts and this new child will be welcomed with the same enthusiasm and joy we felt for them all. What can we say to alleviate any hard feelings our children, husband and I feel toward such insensitive people?

DEAR CONCERNED:

When such comments are made in front of the children give them a big hug and tell the person you are all looking forward to the new addition with the same love and happiness you welcomed all of your children. Reassure your children of your love for them. Most siblings whether adopted or not, sometimes have a difficult time accepting a new brother or sister into the family. Many articles are written about the subject in child care books. You should take a trip to the library to read articles on the subject. You sound like a loving family with plenty of love to give to all.

DEAR AUNT PATTY:

Me and some of my co-workers are having a difficult time being around one of the ladies that works with us. Apparently she doesn't believe in using deodorant. She appears to be clean and her clothes are always neat so we are assuming she just doesn't wear deodorant. On some of these hot days we have been having recently, the smell has been most nauseating. We were wondering what you suggest we say during our lunch break to casually bring up the subject.

THE NOSE KNOWS

DEAR NOSE KNOWS:

Take some manufacturers cents-off coupons for deodorants into work. Start a conversation about deodorants and ask each of your co-workers what brand they prefer. Be sure to ask the offender. Talk about the importance of using a deodorant, what kinds you like, and what the consequences are when you don't wear any. Then a few days later you can bring in two containers of the same kind of deodorant, tell the offender you got one free, and ask her if she would like to try it. Maybe it will work. If it doesn't start to complain about B.O. Maybe she'll pick up the scent — oops, I mean hint!

DEAR AUNT PATTY:

My in-laws curse every other word. It really upsets me but I have bitten my tongue and put up with it for over four years.

We have a 24-month old daughter, and I don't want her to pick up this kind of language. What should I do: say something, have my husband say something, or keep quiet?

RINGING EARS

DEAR RINGING EARS:

Voice your concern to your husband only, not to his parents. It is his job to represent his concern. If he refuses to do or say anything, you may need to forget it. Your main responsibility is that of teaching your child the right way of expressing himself.

YOUR BODY'S FRAMEWORK

In viewing the human skeletal structure, it is awesome to contemplate the body's ability to hold itself upright. We are amazed at the various weight-bearing joints in the body and the number of pounds that these joints support. We see that some skeletal bones act as support structures while others, such as the ribs or skull, protect the internal organs.

Chiropractors direct their attention to the spinal column because it is, in every sense, the "backbone" of the body. It literally anchors, directly or indirectly, every other bone in the body.

Regular spinal check-ups by your doctor or chiropractic and early detection of problems, help assure maintenance of this delicate balance in your spine, and the safeguarding of your overall health. Plan to visit your chiropractor regularly, tell others, too, about the benefits of a good chiropractic check-up and the maintenance of good health.

CORNEAL SPECIALIST JOINS PUGLIESE EYE CLINIC

Dr. Larry A. Litscher, a specialist in diseases of the cornea joined the Joseph Pugliese Eye Clinic in Kingston on June 1st. Dr. Litscher specializes in corneal transplants and corneal refractive surgery.

Dr. Litscher will be accepting new patient appointments at the Eye Clinic in Kingston, at 283-7405. Since the addition of Dr. Litscher, the Eye Clinic staff now consists of six ophthalmologists and three optometrists covering the following specialties: JOSEPH F. PUGLIESE, M.D. — Cataract & Lens Implant Surgery. THOMAS G. SHARKEY, M.D. — Pediatric & Glaucoma Surgery. DONALD J. SAVAGE, M.D. — Retina-Vitreous Surgery. ANTHONY J. KAMEEN, M.D. — Medical Ophthalmology. ROBERT C. HARBOR, M.D. — Neuro-Ophthalmology & Oculo-Plastics, and LARRY A. LITSCHER, M.D. — Cornea & Refractive Surgery. JAY L. ENDRUSICK, O.D., KURT J. MOODY, O.D. and GAIL A. EVANS, O.D. — Specialty Contact Lens Fittings, Refractions and Low Vision.

Dr. Litscher attended Dartmouth College in New Hampshire where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and graduated summa cum laude with a bachelor's degree in biology. He received his medical degree from McGill University in Montreal, Canada, where he was named a University Scholar.

After an internship in internal medicine, Dr. Litscher served a three year residency in ophthalmology at the State University of New York Upstate Medical Center in Syracuse, N.Y. While in Syracuse, he served as chief resident of ophthalmology at both the University Hospital and the Veterans Administration Hospital. His training included all aspects of eye surgery, including intraocular lens implants and laser surgery.

After his residency, Dr. Litscher spent an additional year as a Clinical Fellow in corneal disease and surgery with the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Florida in Gainesville. While there, he studied diseases of the cornea and the external eye as well as advanced microsurgical techniques for corneal transplants, cataract extractions and intraocular lens implantations.

In addition, he served as a clinical instructor for the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Florida and the Gainesville Veterans Administration Medical Center where he continued to teach techniques of cataract surgery.

Dr. Litscher is certified by the Medical Boards of both the United States and Canada, as well as the American Board of Ophthalmology. He is a member of the PA Medical Society and has been elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Ophthalmology.

Dr. Litscher is married to Dr. Karen Hoerberle, who is a clinical psychologist. They reside in Dallas, PA.
