LAST WEEK'S ANSWER

'Tony' Bonomo dies

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Correspondent

The sudden death of Anthony Bonomo, Sr. last week, saddened hundreds of adults and youth in the Back Mountain.

Known better to his friends and neighbors as "Tony," the owner and proprietor of Bonomo's Sports Center was a friend, advisor, teammate and companion to the many persons, young and old, who frequented the bowling lanes, skating rink or on occasion, tennis courts.

A quiet man, Tony always had a smile and a hello for everyone and he was one of those rare individuals who never forgot a name or a face.

In the 25 years he was in business in Dallas and prior to that when he was proprietor of Exeter Recreation Center, Tony had one dream — that was to develop a recreation center and sports complex for the entire family. A place where parents and children could go as a family, a place that would serve as an extension of family life to which Tony was dedicated.

Tony loved all people and he extended a helping hand to many unfortunate people in the area. No one will ever know how many times and to how many people he extended a helping hand.

He loved his family, and after the death of his wife, Helen, he became deeply involved in the family life of his two sons, Richard and Tony, Jr. During the past few years, outside of the bowling lanes and skating rink, Tony's entire life revolved around his twin grandsons, Rocky and Ricky.

Tears came to his eyes and he beamed with pride as he spoke glowingly about the success the twins had achieved in their wrestling careers, both in high school and later in college. His one wish was that the two boys would complete their college education and become successful young men of the future.

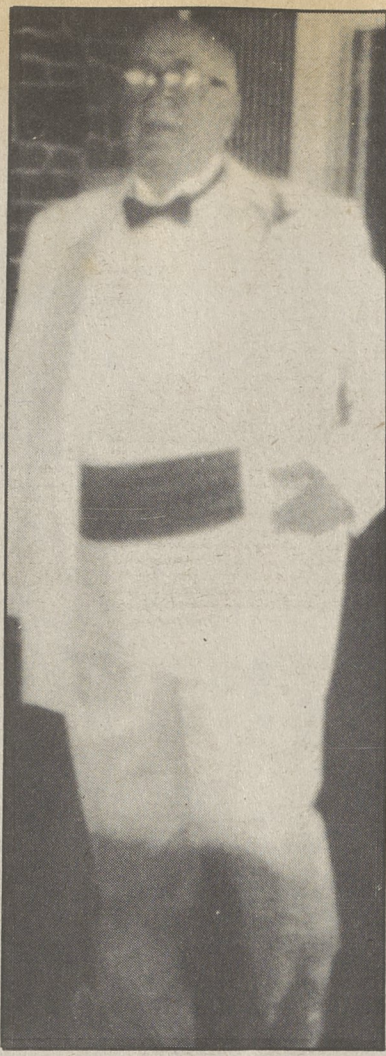

Just several weeks before he went into the hospital, in a conversation with this writer he said, "I love those two boys, nobody knows how proud I am of them. I only wish their Grandmother Helen was here to see what good boys they are."

Recently, Tony sold the skating rink and, with the aid of his two sons, Richard and Tony Jr., planned to renovate and improve the bowling lanes. Now that is the legacy he has left to both sons — perhaps a better word is the challenge he has left — to make Bonomo's Sports Center bigger and better than ever, a memorial to a man whose ambition in life was to provide family recreation for the Back Mountain.

Tony Bonomo Sr., passed away Thursday, Sept. 5, at Mercy Hospital where he had been a surgical patient for three weeks. Most of his friends were not even aware that he had entered the hospital; most had just seen him just a short time before at the lanes or doing errands in Dallas.

Just one day prior to Tony's death, a brother, Elmer, died at his home in Wilkes-Barre.

Tony was born in Wilkes-Barre, the son of the late Charles A. and

ANTHONY BONOMO, SR.

Catherine Bonomo, and attended St. Mary's High School, Wilkes-Barre. Prior to coming to Dallas 25 years ago, he owned and operated the Exeter Recreation Center on Lincoln Street, Exeter. At the time of his death, he was owner and proprietor of Bonomo's Sports Center, Dallas.

He was a member of Gate of Heaven Church, Dallas, and was a veteran of World War II, having served in the South Pacific with the U.S. Marines.

His wife, Helen, died in 1979.

Surviving are sons, Richard, Pikes Creek; Anthony, Jr., Dallas; brothers, Stephen and Richard, both of Wilkes-Barre; sisters, Mrs. Marion Luongo, Wilkes-Barre; Mrs. Ann Merlino, East Orange, N.J.; and five grandchildren.

Funeral was Saturday morning from the Richard Disque Funeral Home, with Mass of Christian Burial from Gate of Heaven, Dallas. Interment was in St. Mary's Byzantine Cemetery, Dallas.

Tony Bonomo has passed on, but in the hearts and minds of the men and women bowlers of the Back Mountain and the youth who found a place to gather after games, he will live forever. And if his sons pick up the challenge he gave them, Bonomo's Sports Center will grow bigger and better than ever.
