Dining at Piledggi's is well worth the trip

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Correspondent

Back Mountain residents who have had the opportunity to dine at Piledggi's Restaurant, 199 Division St., Kingston, usually return time and time again to enjoy the wide variety of entrees offered by the family-owned and managed Italian-American Restaurant.

Specializing in Italian Cuisine, Piledggi's also offers an extensive menu of steaks, chops, veal, seafood, poultry and salads. For more than 50 years, the restaurant has continued as a family operation with all soups, salad dressings, sauces, pastas and most desserts made daily on the premises.

Dominic Piledggi, an Italian immigrant, opened the restaurant in 1933 with his wife, Mary. It was in the height of the depression that Dominic closed his produce business and opened a small bar and restaurant on Zerby Avenue in Edwardsville.

His new business became so successful that a year later, he built a larger building at 199 Division St., Kingston, where Piledggi's has continued to do business since 1934.

Dominic's sons, Tony and Tommy, and his daughter, Betty, initiated a family tradition of good food and service, which is still carried on today. Betty supervises the kitchen, overseeing the preparation of the food and takes pride in personally preparing the homemade soups, sauces, and most of the pasta and Italian dishes. Complete family involvement is the primary factor in the success of Piledggi's Italian-American Restaurant.

Bill McGough, Jr. and Budd O'Malia now oversee the operation of the restaurant which is divided into two areas, the bar and lounge area separated from the main diningroom by a foliage-covered divider, which combined accommodates approximately 167 people. There is also additional seating at the bar.

All food is prepared to the diner's liking so patrons are advised to be patient. No one has to wait an unusual length of time but diners may enjoy a leisurely cocktail or conversation while waiting for their dinner.

While all entrees are prepared with the diner in mind, there are some that are special favorites with Piledggi's regular customers. Rack of lamb, a specialty of the house, is prepared to taste and is so tender it melts in your mouth. Passan steak, a Piledggi original, is a 20-ounce sirloin prepared with a special sauce. Chateaubriand is a filet mignon dinner for two, complete with choice of vegetable, potato and salad. Cornish hen is a favorite on the menu and an entree that is not found on the menu of most restaurants. Veal is a tradition at Piledggi's and is prepared in any way the customer prefers it.

All items are available for takeout for those persons who prefer to dine in their own home or are unable to get out.

The large diningroom with lightwood booths and tables, accented by light upholstery and moss green wall-to-wall carpeting features large wall murals and paintings lending a cheerful and relaxing atmosphere for diners after the rush of a busy day. Waitresses, many of them employed at Piledggi's for several decades, give prompt and friendly service.

A complete-stocked bar of spirits, wines and beers to go with your dinner is well-known at Piledggi's and no dinner is complete without trying one of the house specialties—a blended fresh fruit cream daiquiri.

Open for dinner, Monday through Saturday, from 4:30 p.m. to midnight, Piledggi's feature evening specials every Monday through Thursday. These include entrees not on the regular menu such as veal, seafood combinations, fettuccini, red snapper and special steak dinners, specialties of the chef, who attended the culinary institute.

Piledggi's also serve lunch, Monday through Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., featuring homemade soups, sandwiches and hot entrees.

For an enjoyable dining experience, stop in to visit the Piledggi family's Italian-American Restaurant where there is plenty of free parking and casual dress is welcomed. Bring the family and let the children order from their own menu. All major credit cards are accepted but reservations are recommended so there will be no waiting.

The Piledggi family has been serving the public for more than 50 years and always welcome new friends. For par excellence in service, food and friendliness, we suggest that you stop in.
