Skating center has new owner

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Correspondent

"Welcome to Roll-Away Family Skating Rink and Entertainment Center." That is the new sign hanging on the wall of the skating rink once owned by the late Tony Bonomo.

Nick Tsaiolos, owner of Mr. Donut Shoppes, located in Kingstons; Sans Souci Highway, Hanover Township; Valmont Parkway, West Hazleton; and Memorial Highway, Dallas, purchased the roller rink on May 15 of this year. He recently opened it to the public.

He immediately began renovations and, to date, has installed new carpeting, linoleum, rows of booths, and made many other changes. Next on his list of priorities is re-painting the inside.

Open every day from 6 to 10 p.m., Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sundays, 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Tsaiolos also caters to private parties, youth groups, school groups and birthday parties. He is always at the rink when it is open and information may be obtained by calling him at 675-4844.

Monday is "Oldtimers Night" at the Roll-Away, a night for all adults over the age of 18. Saturday during the day is for children and a $2.00 admission fee allows them to skate for as long as they desire. Thursdays, the doors are open to housewives from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The rink is well-lighted inside and out; every child who comes in must stay in until parents or guardian come to pick them up. There is adult supervision and on busy nights, outside security. There will be no fear of damage to cars or other rowdiness.

There are plenty of booths for persons who want to have a snack and plenty of seating for adults who want to watch their young people skate. The restrooms are supervised as well and proper behavior must be observed on the skating floor. Roughness, pushing or carelessness will not be tolerated.

Tsaiolos wants people to be assured of a good time when they come to Roll-Away. Objectionable persons will be refused admission and persons in the rink must conduct themselves as ladies and gentlemen.

Nick Tsaiolos is more than willing to discuss various arrangements with community groups. It is his hope to make the place available to school classes, church youth groups and community youth organizations at a cost they can afford.

He offers a "Birthday Special" for children observing their birthday. If you have a child, who wants a birthday skating party for $25, Nick Tsaiolos will let you include as many children as you would like. This price includes admission and skates. Bring your own birthday cake. At the rink's snack bar, hot dogs, pretzels, doughnuts, chips, soda and other snack items may be purchased.

Long in business in his Mr. Donut Shoppes, this is Nick Tsaiolos' first experience in a recreation center, but he wants to make it the center of enjoyment for adults and children — a center "For Family Togetherness" where "Friendship is the Key" because Nick Tsaiolos cares.

Kvashay is appointed

Among the new faces of the professional staff this year at Lake-Lehman is that of William E. Kvashay, who has been hired to teach computer science courses at both the junior and senior high school buildings.

A Penn State graduate, Kvashay is teaching the beginning courses in computer science and BASIC programming to eighth grade students at the Lake-Lehman Junior High School and computer science, Algebra III, and trigonometry at the Senior High School. His students use the Apple II-e computers recently purchased by the school district.

Kvashay attended high school in State College, Pennsylvania, graduating in 1973. He then spent three years in the United States Marine Corps before pursuing a bachelor's degree in computer science, graduating from Penn State in 1981. He also is the head cross country coach at Wilkes College and teaches an SAT (college entrance examination) preparation course during the evenings.

Kvashay and his wife Donna have a daughter Aileah (age 4) and son Karl, (age 2). They reside in Dallas.

Smoking makes heart work faster than usual

Did you ever see a football player grab a long pass from two defenders, run 20 yards for a touchdown, then come off the field and light up a cigarette?

Probably not. And you are not likely to, either. That's because athletes cannot afford to smoke, and they know it. The American Heart Association says the two main components of cigarettes, nicotine and carbon monoxide, inhibit the efficient operation of the heart.

Nicotine makes the heart beat faster, forcing the heart to work harder and demand more oxygen, while carbon monoxide in the lungs cuts down the oxygen available to the heart and bloodstream. It's a no-win situation, and athletes like to win. It's no wonder that they usually do not smoke.

The wonder is that anyone smokes in view of the overwhelming statistics. Despite the warnings of the Surgeon General of the U.S. Public Health Service as early as 1964 that cigarette smoking is dangerous to one's health smoking continues to be a factor in about 350,000 deaths each year. Further, since 1964, the American public has incurred more than $930 billion in cigarette-induced medical costs, according to report in 1984 by the American Council on Science and Health.

The report states that these costs-to non-smokers as well as to smokers—are born: 1) through tax-supported public welfare programs providing benefits to those disabled by smoking-related disease and their survivors; 2) through health and life insurance companies which charge equal premiums to smokers and non-smokers, even though smokers have a much higher risk of serious illness and premature death; and 3) through increased prices in consumer goods as a result of smokers' high rate of absenteeism from work.

Why then do people smoke? Many people start to smoke when they are teenagers because of peer pressure from friends or because their parents smoke. Teenagers with older brothers and sisters who smoke are three times more likely to smoke than their counterparts.

Some people smoke because they believe the message of the cigarette companies. Over $800 million is spent annually in advertising to convince the American public that smoking is desirable, if not beneficial. One brand makes a person independent, spirited and free; another brand guarantees status; and merely "lighting up" another is macho, debonair or sexy.

Kiwanis honored

A Certificate of Participation in the Special Olympic Track and Field Competition was presented to the Back Mountain Kiwanis Club at their Demo Derby on Sept. 22 by Frank Lavin, Area P Coordinator for Special Olympics.

This certificate, which was signed by Edward M. Kennedy, President of Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation and Eunice Kennedy Shriver, President of Special Olympics, Inc., is one of seven awards for Recognition of Service in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
