

Signs received

The Kingston Township Crime Watch Association recently received, from the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency, four new reflective "Crime Watch" road signs. The signs, which were purchased with funding made available by the township's Board of Supervisors, will be erected along various thoroughfares of the township. Displaying one of the new "reflective" signs are, from left, seated, Willard Platt, Vice Chairman, Board of Supervisors; Edward Price, Jr., Chairman, Board of Supervisors and Kingston township Police Chief, Paul Sabol. Standing, Daniel Wisnieski, Supervisor; Herbert Hill, Supervisor; Ambrose Gavigan, Supervisor; Harold Shelly, Crime Watch Coordinator; Kingston township patrolmen James Balavage and Gary Beisel and Township manager Fred Potzer.

New magazine debuts

Carolyn Bulford, a resident of the Back Mountain, has been named as local editor of "Wyoming Valley, Our Town Magazine."

She is responsible for locating writers in the Wyoming Valley area and for generating thought-provoking and informative articles from such local sources as service clubs, government agencies, the business, health and religious sectors, and cultural, artistic and educational institutions, historical and health organizations.

"Wyoming Valley, Our Town Magazine" will feature these locally written articles, fiction and poetry of various lengths. "Our Town Magazine" encourages writers to take a positive look at Wilkes-Barre and its surrounding communities and to showcase local talent and interests.

The first issue of "Our Town Magazine" will be released in January and will be published on a bi-monthly basis thereafter. Interested writers should submit their pieces to Mrs. Bulford by mailing them to "Our Town Magazine", P.O. Box 207, Dallas, PA 18612.

Mrs. Bulford has had various experience in the print media and public communications including Public Relations Director for the Luzerne County Fair, staff correspondent for a local daily publication, assistant to the director of public relations at College Misericordia, Dallas and numerous volunteer projects for civic and sports organizations.

POLICE BLOTTER

A Dallas woman was involved in a hit-and-run accident last Friday afternoon near the entrance of Rave's Garden Center on Route 309, Kingston Township.

According to Kingston Township police, Florence Koehl of 7 Birch Hill Lane, Dallas was traveling south on Route 309 and was attempting to turn left into the Rave's parking lot when an unknown vehicle hit her car in the right rear fender and then drove off without stopping.

Koehl was not injured and she was unable to give Kingston Township police a description of the unknown motorist. Kingston Township police are continuing their investigation.

Kingston Township police chief

Paul Sabol said Monday that vandals tore down clotheslines and threw clothing around the yard of Carol Kosisky of 168 Meadowcrest Road, Trucksville sometime this past weekend.

The mischief was discovered Sunday morning and reported to Kingston Township police.

Police Chief Paul Sabol, Kingston Township, said his department would like to inform residents that beginning November 1, the township's winter parking ordinance will go into effect.

The ordinance prohibits the parking of vehicles on all public streets between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. The ordinance is designed to make plowing snow easier for early morning road crews.

The 15th Annual Back Mountain Police Association Ball will be held November 16 from 8 p.m. to 12 p.m. on the campus of College Misericordia, Kingston Township Police Chief Paul Sabol announced Monday.

A buffet dinner with an open bar is planned as well as live entertainment provided by the group "Marry Makers", who feature top 40 and square dance music.

The Ball's committee personnel are Kingston Township patrolmen Joseph Bren and Michael Moravec along with Tom Casey, Chief of Police in Pringle borough.

Tickets, $10, for the Ball can be obtained by contacting any member of the Back Mountain Police Association.

Alleged threats lead to hearing

A Trucksville man will face charges of Recklessly Endangering Another Person and Terroristic Threats before District Justice Earl Gregory on Monday, October 28, stemming from an incident this past Saturday when the man allegedly threatened to kill five people.

Scheduled to appear before Justice Gregory is Francis John Brennan of 85 Meadowcrest Drive, Trucksville.

Brennan was arrested by State Police Trooper Donald Taylor early Saturday evening after Brennan reportedly threatened Mrs. Lisa Barbiloski, 24, of RD 2 Harveys lake and her three children Crystal, 7; Lea Ann, 4; and Jennifer, age 2.

A fifth person allegedly threatened was Manley Smith, who, according to the magistrates' records, lives with Mrs. Barbiloski.

Trooper Taylor's report indicated that on Saturday October 19 at about 5 p.m. Mrs. Barbiloski received a phone call from Brennan. Brennan, the report says, was looking for Smith. When Barbiloski told Brennan that Smith was not at home, Brennan allegedly said that he (Brennan) was going to "blow Smith away" with his (Brennan's) rifle. Barbiloski told police that Brennan said he would "blow Barbiloski and her family away" also.

The incident report continues by stating that at approximately 5:30 p.m. Brennan drove his car past the Barbiloski home and waved a rifle out of the car window, firing it once as he passed the residence.

Brennan reportedly then left the premises and called the Barbiloski home about 15 minutes later and said "he would be back."

Barbiloski then left her home with her three children and called the State Police.

The charge of Recklessly Endangering Another Person stems from the eyewitness account of Allen and Nora Clark of RD 2, Harveys lake.

The Clarks, according to the report, were walking past the Barbiloski home when Brennan allegedly waved his rifle from his car and then subsequently fired the gun.
