

School

Rollin' along
Kenny Hoover, a kindergarten student at the Dallas Township School, was in charge of his own railroad during the school's recent Halloween Parade.

Scary sight
Ned Palka managed to frighten a few of his sixth grade classmates during the annual Halloween Parade held last week at the Dallas Intermediate School.

Program set
Career counselor Lynn Morgan (left) and Naranjan Idgunji, professor of electrical engineering technology, both of Penn State Wilkes-Barre at Lehman, discuss plans for a career networking program to be held on Thursday, Nov. 14, at 6 p.m. at the local campus in Lehman. For more information, call the Center for Individual Development, 675-9224.

Gutstein is honored

Guyler C. Gutstein, a senior at Wyoming Seminary College Preparatory School, Kingston, has been selected as the November Student of the month for the Kingston/Fort Fort Lions Club.

An active participant in the school's athletic program, Gutstein has been a four year member of the soccer team and has traveled and played team soccer in China, Japan, Germany, Belgium and Holland. He has also been a four year member and is captain of the boys' swim team. He is also a member of the tennis team.

Mr. Gutstein's additional school activities include being assistant editor of the yearbook, member of the "W" Club for Athletes, and was selected to attend the Close-Up Program Seminar on government in Washington, D.C.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gutstein, Shavertown, Mr. Gutstein is a Dean's List student whose career interests include chemistry and medicine.

Governor signs child legislation

Citing the state's already outstanding record in collecting child support payments, Gov. Dick Thornburgh recently signed legislation consolidating state child support laws and related domestic issues. "With this new legislation, we will expand our efforts to ensure that child support payments are made by the absent parent, and not by the taxpayer," Thornburgh said. "Furthermore, this law will not impose any additional new requirements on the person who currently is making support payments on time," the governor noted.

"I want to congratulate Rep. Lois Sherman Hagarty (R-Montgomery) and other members of the General Assembly who worked on this legislation," he said.

Pennsylvania has been the national leader in child support collections for the past three years, collecting $350 million last year alone.
