Follow these foods rules

The upcoming holiday season, with the key ingredients of family, food and fun, can provide the perfect setting for lasting memories.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture suggests that one of the best ways to keep the family and fun in the holidays is to follow some basic rules for proper food preparation.

Keep cold food cold. Maintaining temperatures of under 40 degrees to prevent the growth of bacteria that can cause food poisoning. Try to plan far enough in advance to allow meat and poultry to thaw in the refrigerator. If you must thaw meats quickly, do so in an enclosed watertight package in cold water, changing the water often.

Meats may also be thawed safely in a microwave oven by following the manufacturer's directions.

Food specialists caution against thawing turkey or any meat or poultry products on the kitchen counter, where the meat is subject to bacteria.

Keep hot food hot. Maintain temperatures of 165 to 212 degrees. Cook all foods thoroughly, and reheat leftovers fully. Allow all frozen foods to cook for an additional time. Make sure food is not left out for more than two hours. Bacteria which can cause food poisoning can grow rapidly at room temperatures, and left out over two hours provides the perfect breeding ground.

Keep hands, kitchen and utensils clean. Help assure a more wholesome environment for food preparation, serving and consumption. Don't forget to thoroughly wash utensils used with raw meat or poultry. Using the same utensils on other foods without washing can lead to bacteria transfer and food poisoning.

Twp. Crime Watch group holds meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Kingston Township Crime Watch Organization was held on Monday evening, Nov. 25, at the Kingston Township Municipal Building.

The meeting featured a guest speaker who conducted the first in a series of lectures on Home Security.

Kingston Township Crime Watch Coordinator Harold Shelly also gave a report on the Luzerne County Crime Watch Convention which was held on Nov. 2. The featured speaker for the convention was Luzerne County District Attorney Robert Gillespie, Jr.

Shelly reports that meetings have been held with the officers of the Crime Watch Organization and several block captains. Shelly stated that the Sunrise Estates Homeowners Association have strongly endorsed the Crime Watch Program. Mr. Clin McMullen has been appointed Sector Coordinator for the Sunrise Estates Area.

Shelly reminds area residents that the Operation I.D. Program is available to any resident of the Township. Under this program the Kingston Township Police Department will loan electric engravers to area residents to mark valuable items. Complete instructions on how the program works may be obtained by contacting Police Chief Paul M. Sabol at 696-1174.

Shelly also reported that after January 1st the Crime Watch meetings will follow a new format which has been designed to spark public interest in the program. Each meeting will feature a guest speaker who will discuss some aspect of crime prevention. Additionally, the Crime Watch is building a film library and film strips and slide presentations will become a regular part of each meeting. The upcoming meetings will also feature progress reports from the Sector Coordinators and Block Captains according to Shelly.

There will be no Crime Watch meeting in December due to the Christmas holiday. Regular meetings will reconvene in January of 1986.

Studded tires now legal

Rep. George C. Hasay recently reminded Pennsylvania motorists that it's now legal to use studded snow tires.

The legislator noted that studded tires are illegal in the Commonwealth between April 15 and Oct. 31. Hasay added that approved snow tires—not necessarily studded—or chains are required on vehicles traveling on declared "snow emergency routes."

Hasay also reminded citizens of special regulations for snowmobiles.

Individuals who operate snowmobiles on state-owned land or designated local roadways must register their vehicles with the state Department of Environmental Resources. There is a bi-annual fee of $10.

Hasay noted that most snowmobile dealers and notaries public have the form needed to register the vehicles.
