Contest held

Comet program scheduled

Halley's Comet, now visible to amateur astronomers, will become visible to observers in the Wilkes-Barre area during the early evening hours in December, as it makes its approach toward the sun.

Since Halley's Comet will not pass around the sun again before the year 2061, Luzerne County Community College, the Wilkes College Astronomy Club, and the Luzerne County Science Teachers Association will sponsor a joint program designed to provide area residents with an opportunity to view the comet.

The special program on Halley's Comet will be open to the public free of charge, and will be conducted in two evening sessions at the Educational Conference Center on the LCCC main campus in Nanticoke on Wednesday, Dec. 4 and Thursday, Dec. 5, pending a clear sky for viewing.

The sessions will begin at 7 p.m. and will include a lecture featuring Ken Lewis, professor of physics at LCCC, the viewing of a film strip and video tape, and comet observation through telescopes set up on the community college campus. Program participants are encouraged to dress accordingly and bring a set of binoculars.

Reservations for the sessions are limited, and will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis. For further information or to register to attend contact the Office of Continuing Education at Luzerne County Community College at 829-7477.

Everything else is just a light.

So ask them to bring out their best.
