on entertainment with Debbey Wysocki

For Hitchcock "Psycho" fans, "Psycho III" is tentatively scheduled for release in February. In it, Anthony Perkins makes his directorial debut. He also continues his role as the schizophrenic Norman Bates in the second sequel to the Alfred Hitchcock masterpiece. Shooting has taken place in Los Angeles for Universal Pictures.

Hilton A. Green is producer, Bruce Surtess the director of photography, and Henry Bumstead production designer. The cast also includes Diana Scarwid, Hugo Stanger, Robert Alan Browne, Jack Murdoch, Jeff Fahey, Roberta Maxwell, Gary Bayer and Karen Hensel.

WYSOCKI

When asked what was the one thing he learned from Hitchcock, Perkins responds "preparation." Perkins has stated that he put this into use by meticulously planning every shot during the production of "Psychol III."

Unlike "Psycho III," more and more filming is being done on location and in various tates around the country. Therefore, film bureaus have been created to satisfy this demand. In Pennsylvania, the film bureau was created to satisfy this demand. In Pennsylvania, the film bureau was created in 1977. The Pennsylvania Film Bureau is under the able leadership of R.C. Staab, whose office is located at 461 Forum Bldg., Harrisburg 17120. Since its creation, local communities have received $61.4 million in economic benefit, and 44 television films or series, with $7.9 million benefit. In 1984, nine motion pictures and TV projects were made in the state, with an $11.8 billion economic benefit. Having movies and TV series filmed in Pennsylvania has certainly been advantageous to the state as well as production companies who can reduce expenditures by "shooting" outside of California.

Now for those readers who want to know about the movie "Shoku Taku No Nai Le," it stars, plot summary, and other such pertinent information, my eloquent response has to be, "Please don't ask..."
