POLICE BLOTTER

Kingston Twp.

No injuries were reported as a result of a three-car crash that took place early Saturday morning in Kingston Township.

Police said Richard Thomas Reinhard, 7 Orchard St., Dallas, was traveling south on Rt. 309 in the passing lane when he began to lose control of his car. Reinhard then crossed over into the right lane to avoid oncoming traffic, went up an embankment and slammed into a pole.

Sylvia Vincent Schoner, 68 Grandview Ave., Dallas stopped to offer assistance, but her 1981 Pontiac LeMans also went up the embankment. Robert Finlay, Shineview Manor, Dallas, operator of the third car, who was driving behind the Schoner vehicle, could not stop in time and rammed into the rear of her car.

Police said icy road conditions did

School board

tion we can get, the better off we'll be."

Other board members raised questions as to whether the move would be wise or not, but most seemed to favor the move.

"The idea seems to have more positive effects than negative ones," Dr. William D. Camp of the Education Committee said. "The facilities are better and more advanced. We should have more input first but it does seem like a step in the right direction."

Added Ernest Ashbridge from the Intermediate Unit, "We need more input from the public. I think we should further study the effects of putting the sixth graders in with ninth graders."

Wycallis said he has had preliminary meetings with the Education Committee, Citizens Action Committee and PTO organizations, but that the key point would come from the parents.

Board members have targeted the 1988-89 school year as the merger date but said there is a possibility it could happen as soon as 1986-87. With that date only a year away, officials say there is also a chance the school may stay open for another year.

Complaints of the schools deteriorating condition along with heating problems fueled the possibility of the move. It is estimated that the school would save approximately $70,000 if the plan goes through.

Quilt

Boos was responsible for making certain the sewing machines and other equipment was in the room when the Life class convened.

On Jan. 6, work on the Columbia blue and white quilt began. Each day company employees, management and workers, worked diligently on the project and were fascinated in watching the quilt become a beautiful piece of needlework under their fingers. The large "DHS" in the center surrounded by "86", "87" and "88" accented the two shades of blue coordinate with the white.

The quilt, if all goes well, should be completed this week. A date to chance off the quilt has not yet been decided but those persons, students, teachers, staff, family and friends, who have purchased tickets are eagerly awaiting the "Day".

"It has been a good experience for all of us," said Accountant Paul Gritman. "It gave us good basic knowledge in establishing a new business."

Asked how he arrived at the cost of 25 cents per ticket, Gritman said that the price would cover the cost involved in establishing the business and that the company should net approximately $35. What they will do with the money has not yet been decided.

General Manager Kim Yakowski said she learned early to delegate responsibility and that the quilt was worked on by four groups, which was instrumental in the project being successful.

Mrs. Goeringer hopes that all of her students feel just as Kim and Paul do. As a follow-up in the project when the quilt is completed and gone, Mrs. Goeringer will do an evaluation and one of the most important questions she plan to ask each student is "If you had been a personnel manager, who would you have retained and who would you have dismissed and why?" She hopes their answers will help her to determine how successfully they achieved the goal she was striving for in the project, "Quilts-R-Us."
