Church women hold annual cookie sale

Volunteer women from the United Methodist Church in Kunkle held their annual cookie sale project last week at the Kunkle Fire House.

The 10-woman group, which has been holding the event for the past six years, said they had baked 450 dozen cookies, with the proceeds from the sale going to the church.

The women said ingredients used were purchased with the aid of green stamps to help keep costs down and that the cookies themselves, which had already been pre-sold, were baked on griddles.

Close to $500 is expected to be raised by the one week drive with boxes selling for $1.50 a dozen.

The Church will be celebrating its 100th anniversary next September.

Residents warned against false BC/BS representatives

In a statement issued recently, officials at Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania, once again warned area residents to be on the watch for parties falsely claiming to represent the health care insurer in door to door solicitation or phony billing mailings.

At your doorstep or in the mail. Recently, there have been several attempts locally to defraud people, the elderly, in particular, through misrepresentation, scams and other fraudulent means," said Donald R. Serfass, Manager to Public Relations for the Wilkes-Barre based operation that serves 13 counties.

According to Serfass, health care coverage from Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania Blue Shield is available only through your local Blue Cross and Blue Shield office.
