Permanent building may be in future

Jackson Township supervisors approved the acceptance of a bid for $4,800 for a used office trailer and office furniture that will house the township police department temporarily, at the regular meeting held Monday, April 7. The total of $4,800 included $4,600 for the trailer and the additional $200 for office furniture.

The supervisors also approved the motion to obtain the services of an appraiser to survey the property the township hopes to purchase as a possible location for a permanent township building.

Most of the residents at the meeting were surprised at the announcement but most of them were in agreement that the township needed a permanent police building.

Police chief Donald Jones reported that a 1986 Chevrolet will be purchased as the new police cruiser through the State Purchasing Plan at an estimated cost of about $11,300 and the car should arrive in about four months. The board took no action on a letter from the Woodridge Associates read by Township Solicitor Blythe Evans. The letter sent to Evans by the Woodridge Associates attorney requested that the supervisors pass the existing specifications for roadways within the Woodridge Associates development.

The letter further stated the entire six-year project is under the guidelines of the township appointed engineer and the developers feel the supervisors should pass the resolution so the development can progress.

It was announced that the county has sent approval to demolish a substandard structure near Huntsville Corners, Huntsville Corners, owned by Arthur A. Houck of New York. The county will pay the cost of demolition of the structure.
