

REP. STANLEY JAROLIN

JOE YEAGER

Jarolin and Yeager square off for seat

Democratic State Representative hopeful Joe Yeager narrowly missed out knocking off incumbent Stanley Jarolin by a total of 12 votes in his first run ever for public office. This time, however, he feels the outcome will be different in the 119th Legislative District on the May 20 Primary.

"I feel very confident," said Atty. Yeager, a public defender for Luzerne County said. "After having gone door-to-door, I see the response has been very positive. The people have been discouraged and dissatisfied with their representation over the past four years. He (Jarolin) has shown the inability to secure jobs in the region, except for his family, and the people also want to know about his financial troubles (referring to his declaring voluntary bankruptcy for his heating-plumbing firm).

"He has also refused to debate me on the issues, and I think the voters should at least have a chance to view a debate and then make decision on who they want to represent them."

Incumbent State Rep. Stanley Jarolin, D-Nanticoke, says his record over the years speaks for itself and that he is confident he will be elected to serve a third term in the 119th Legislative District.

"I have brought in $7 million in state funds to the district," Jarolin stated. "I have also done work to improve the environment, highways and we are now working on legislation to solve the problem of teenage alcoholism and teenage suicide.

Jarolin has also dismissed charges by his opponent, Atty. Joe Yeager. "He's just looking for free advertisement," Jarolin said. "My accomplishments are public record. I have been a 100 per cent legislator and I have not missed a session in 3½ years. I am available seven days a week and I am a full-time representative."

Dallas youth injured

A 15-year-old Dallas youth was injured Saturday morning as a result of a bus-car accident that took place at Lake Street and Center Hill Road, Dallas.

Ron Post, Jr., RD 5, Oval Drive, was listed in "fair" condition by Nesbitt Hospital officials. Post was a passenger in a car driven by his father, Ron Post, when they became involved in an incident with a bus driven by Christopher Zavatski, 406 East Grand Street, Nanticoke.

According to reports, 33 senior citizens were being transported to College Misericordia for the Senior Citizens Olympics when the vehicle, heading north on Lake Street, failed to stop at the intersection, striking the Post car which was headed east on Center Hill Road. None of the senior citizens were injured.
