THE SORDONI ART GALLERY of Wilkes College is presenting its newest exhibit, "Centralia: Photographs by Stephen Perloff" now through Sunday, July 13. The exhibit consists of a collection of photographs depicting the town of Centralia and the impact of its infamous mine fire on the community.

"Centralia" is the result of years of work by photographer Stephen Perloff, a Kingston native who now makes his home in suburban Philadelphia. Growing up in the Wyoming Valley gave Perloff a special affinity for the plight of Centralia, and a unique perspective when capturing the situation on film. This documentary showing features Perloff's views of the town and its people, who, in the photographer's words, "have been forced into...having to choose between their fear for their health and lives and their love for their community." "Centralia" is intended to illustrate that conflict.

Coming events

THE ART GALLERY at College Misericordia will be the host gallery for a national exhibit of miniature art painted by members of the Cider Painters of America. The group, which was begun by a group of 10 local artists in 1983, now boasts nearly 200 members in over 20 states. The Cider Painters have made national news several times in art circles, since they are the only group of artists dedicated to miniature art to be organized with local chapters. The Cider Painters, through national co-ordinator Sue Hand, was also instrumental in founding the Australian Society of Miniature Art in New South Wales, Australia.

The members paint in the tradition of miniaturism, following the belief that any subject suitable for a large scale painting, even a mural, can be scaled down on canvas or paper to create a miniature masterpiece. The tiny paintings create the illusion of space and depth within a small surface area. All Cider paintings are 3 by 5 inches or smaller, and many are even created with a bit of cider mixed in the medium. Many members use magnifying lenses, and most use extra fine brushes for the meticulous work.

The exhibit is open to the public June 29 through July 17. There is no charge for admission. Gallery tours with Sue Hand, National Coordinator of the Cider Painters of America, are available by appointment for groups of eight or more persons, also free of charge.

ALMA R. JACOBS, Secretary of the Department of Aging, has announced that another in a series of workshops focusing on Alzheimer's family support groups will be held in Wilkes-Barre on June 25, at the Holiday Inn, Routes 315 and 115, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The workshops will show families and caregivers how to organize and maintain support groups which provide a forum for persons to exchange information on how to care for the Alzheimer's victim.

The workshops will include a session describing the disease and its symptoms, and its effect on other members of the family. The day-long program will also describe the roles that support groups can assume, and how they can use community resources.

The Department is sponsoring the workshops that will be operated by the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders, Assn., Inc. of Western Pa. (ADRDA).

There will be no charge to attend the workshops, but advance registration is required. Write to the Western Pa. ADRDA at 1103 Arrot Building, 401 Wood St., Pittsburgh, PA 15222 or call (412) 355-5248.
