Braves lose to Abington in semi-final soccer round

The semi-final round of the Luzerne County Recreation Spring Soccer League was played this past weekend with the final four teams meeting at the Forty Fort Airport field.

In the Western Conference final, the Abington Nomads downed the previously unbeaten Back Moun-tain Braves in an exciting contest, 4-2. Hokan Ojert scored a three-goal hat trick to the lead the Nomads. The Nomads scored two first quarter goals by Ojert and Matt Gallagher to take the early lead.

In the second period, the Braves came back on a score from Scott Marshall of a corner kick by Paul Clemm to close the gap to 2-1 at the half. After a scoreless third period, the Braves pulled out all the stops and halfway through the fourth period, it payed off with Brent Snowdon making a pass across the goal mouth to Dan Holdredge who caught Nomad goalie Josh MacArthur leaning the wrong way and redirected the ball into the opposite corner of the net to tie the score, 2-2.

The game seemed destined for overtime, but Ojert picked up a loose ball that the Brave defenders failed to clear and blasted a 20-yard rocket into the upper left corner of the goal to put the Nomads back on top, 3-2. The fianl goals came on a drew Micco through pass that sprung Ojert on a breakaway and the score. Dan Belin and Eric Johnson were outstanding on defense for the Nomads and MacArthur had 22 saves. The playoff final will pit the Wings against the Nomads next Sunday, June 22, at 3 p.m. at the Forty Fort Airport.

In last Wednesday's action, the Back Mountain Braves edged the Abington Royals, 1-0. The Braves scored early on a first period goal by Brent Snowdon off a corner kick that ricocheted round in front of the goal and the Royals failed to clear. The remainder of the first half and most of the third period saw Brave domination and only stellar play by goalie Trey Ott, sweeper Tim Brown and the Royals defense kept them in the game.

The Royals seemed to come alive in the last period, pressing in on the Braves' goalie, but the steady defensive play of Jason Maniskas, Chris Fetterman, and Matt Lip plus three great saves by Brave goalie John Sheehan on what appeared to be sure goals preserved the shutout for the Braves.

In other first round action, the Abington Nomads survived a shot barrge by the Back Mountain Bandits survived a shot barrie by the Back Mountain Bandits to win, 3-1. For three quarters, the game was scoreless with the Bandits spending much of the time in the Nomad half of the field, but unable to score. In the fourth quarter, Hokan Ojert scored three goals to turn the tide. The first goal came when Ojert was spring by a lody Bosengraphic page. The second wa sprung by a Jody Rosencrance pass. The second was a conversion of a penalty kick.

With seven minutes remaining in the contest, Eric Rosentel retaliated for the Bandits to make it 2-1, but Ojert finished the hat trick in the waning moments of the game by duplicating the first goal with the assist to Rosencrance. Josh MacArthur recorded 21 saves in goal for the Nomads. Mike McDermott also had a fine game in goal for the Bandits.

Also in first round action, the Wyoming Valley Wings downed the Back Mountain Blitz, 4-1. Paul Melone scored two goals and Geoffrey Mahalk and Christoff Nickish added one goal each for the Wings. Kartik Patel picked up an assist.

For the Blitz, Jonathon Ursiak scored on a fourth period penalty kick to avoid the shutout. Jerome Mattey, Chris Chapple and Kim Chapple keyed the defense for the Blitz.

The Northeast Pennsylvania Police Chiefs Association, as part of a state-wide effort to raise funds for the 1986 Special Olympics, has donated $1,000 to the 1986 Pennsylvania Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics (LETRSO). In 1985, more than 60 Pennsylvania Law Enforcement Officers participated in the total run from Pittsburgh to Seven Springs, raising more than $10,000 in the states first LETRSO. This year, three coordinated runs covering 520 miles throughout the state will converge at Muhlenburg College in Allentown, the site of the 1986 State Special Olympics Summer Games. State Attorney General LeRoy S. Zimmerman is serving as this year's honorary chairman of the 1986 Pennsylvania Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics. So far, over 500 Pennsylvania Law Enforcement Officers have registered to participate in the 1986 run. Shown presenting a $1,000 check to the 1986 Pennsylvania Law Enforcement Torch Run are, seated, Roland Biscotnini, Chief, Plains Township Police Department and Secretary of the Pennsylvania Chiefs of Police, presenting the check to Chief Robert W. Rogers on sports

On the afternoon of June 4, Kathy the draft have never seen such Love Ormsby was one of the runners in the 10,000 meter race at the NCAA Track and Field Championships in Indianapolis.

A fine runner and student, Kathy, a pre-med Dean's list student, was in fourth place with a third of the race to go, when she inexplicably ran off the track.

The thought of not winning must have been too great for the 21vear-old. Something snapped. She hopped a fence and ran a few blocks. When she reached a steel bridge spanning the White River, she pulled herself over the 4-foot guard rail and plunged 40 feet, landing next to the river. The fall broke Kathy's spine, a rib and punctured a lung.

RICK

ROGERS

Kathy is paralyzed from the waist down. She is not expected to ever walk, let alone run, again.

Coaches and friends theorize that the pressure to perform was the culprit in this tragedy. When Kathy, who was favored to win the race after setting the NCCA record in the event six weeks ago, felt that she couldn't win, she decided that she didn't want to live

Like any tragedy, there are lessons to be learned, questions to be asked, attitudes to be questioned.

Kathy Love Ormsby is just the most visible victim in the win-atany-cost fanaticism that infests American sports. -0-

It's draft time in the NBA, and the way the teams around the league are holding their draft choices close to the vests, you'd think the security of the United States were at stake. People close to guarded behavior. The reason for the silent treatment is there are no real super-stars in this year's draft, although there are many solid players. With so many players of almost equal ability, drafting becomes very tricky. No general manager with, say, a fifth round pick wants to be scooped by general manager with a ninth pick who, because he did his homework a little better, gets the diamond-in-therough the other guy passed by thinking it was just another rock. This draft will separate the teams that have an eye for potential talent from those who just have eyes. Two, three years from now, this draft will be a measurement of basketball smarts. The bright boys will survive to pick again, the rest will have to content themselves with watching the game from the stands.

-0-The Sixers and the Celtics have the first two picks and are expected to take Brad Daugherty and Len Bias respectively. The Sixers will take Daugherty because he is the safest pick in the draft. The master of the draft Red Auerbach is, on Larry Bird's advice, is going with Bias because he sees greatness just dripping off this guy. If Red makes a mistake on this guy by picking him second in the draft, it will be his first.

-0-Time capsule piece: The players from this draft that are going to be superstars four years from now: 1. Len Bias; 2. Dell Curry; 3. John Williams; 4. Ron Harper; 5. Chris Washburn.

The players that either won't be around in four years or will be considered disappointments: 1. Brad Daughtery; 2. Chuck Person; 3. Johnny Dawkins; 4. Mark Alarie; 5. Walter Berry.

Sleightholm leads Mob

The Mob used five goals from Matt Sleightholm and one each from Greg Choi and Sumner Bachman to defeat the Kicks, 7-3 in the Penn State/Wilkes-Barre Youth Soccer League.

The Kicks had three goals, all scored by Mark Parrish. Two of Parrish's goals came on penalty kicks.

The Cosmos squeaked by the Jammers, 2-1, on goals from Eric McDonough and Sue Richardson with an assist by Robbie Jarvis.

The Jammers' score was put in by Frankie Jones.

The Jammes outplayed The Mob and picked up a 4-0 defeat earlier in the week while the Kicks squashed the Cosmos, 9-4. The Kicks were led by two goals each from Parrish, Sennett, Hayes, Sabatini and one goal from Rogers to pick up the victory Standings are as follows: Cosmos, 3-1; The Mob, 2-2; Kicks, 1-2-1; and Jammers, 1-2-1.

The Astros evened their record at 6-6 when Stan Gulbish struck out 16 Reds to win, 8-1. Gulbish, giving up only three hits, raised his record to 6-0. Jeff Malak led the Astro hitting attack with three hits and four RBIs.
