It is debatable if the meek will inherit the earth, but if the current baseball standings hold true for the rest of the season, the meek have a lot better chance than I thought.

Just the fact that Cleveland isn't holding up the rest of the league has to be encouraging to every 98-pound weakling that ever had sand for lunch.

At the start of the season, I questioned why teams like Cleveland, Houston, San Francisco and Texas even bothered to play the season. Now I know. It is to compete for divisional titles.

My keen baseball judgement is what keeps me behind a typewriter.

I JUST LOVE THE REASON given by Peter Ueberroth on why there is no plan to test baseball players for drugs: We don't have a drug problem, so we don't need any testing.

Brilliant. I guess we can disband our Army because we aren't currently under attack.

Who hired this bonehead anyway? I would have loved to have Ueberroth as my mother when I was growing up.

THE PHILLIES have to get rid of 'Sorry Charlie' Hudson. Not to be unkind, but the guy stinks. Trade him to the Yankees.

BRAD DAUGHERTY, the first choice in the NBA draft, rated the drug problem in college athletics, "Oh, it's seven to eight easily and it's something that has to be looked at very closely." The scale was one to 10. Somehow that is not a revelation.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not against some form of pressure to force athletes into fly right. I just get real nervous when personal rights become the price to be paid.

Hey, once rights are gone, we are all in a lot of trouble. They could take all our rights and there would still be plenty of drugs around. Remember that.

THE USFL ANTI-TRUST CASE is not going well for the NFL. The reason is fairly simple: the NFL is guilty of violating the Sherman Act. Ronald Reagan is probably going to make me a judge for this. Hey, I'm as qualified as any of the other judges he has appointed.

Sunburn can be avoided

Every year about 400,000 new cases of skin cancer occur in the United States. The vast majority are caused by overexposure to the sun.

According to Alexander B. Rakow, deputy secretary for Community Health, in the State Health Department, serious sunburn and its consequences can be avoided with a little preparation and precaution.
