the case may be) identity is revealed just before the Dallas/Lake-Lehman game in November.

Petie, who is returning for the third season as a Dallas Post prognosticator, has managed to conceal his identity from the public until the Old Shoe Game at the conclusion of the season. And, the little guy claims this season will be no different and vows not to let anyone know who he is until the end.

The Dallas Post prognosticators will be following Dallas, Lake-Lehman, Wyoming Seminary, Bishop O'Reilly, and West Side Tech High Schools as well as Penn State University, the University of Pittsburgh and Notre Dame University throughout the 1986 football season.

In their first week of predicting games, the prognosticators all agree that the two Back Mountain schools will post victories in their first outings of the season as Dallas is expected to defeat Hanover and Lake-Lehman is predicted to beat Bishop O'Hara.

The Post prognosticators are split on the Bishop O'Reilly/Bishop Hafey game, however, as Martin and Hoinski side with Hafey while the rest of the field goes with Ron Rybak's Queensmen. In the only other high school game being predicted this week, Columbia Montour County Vo-Tech is expected to defeat West Side Tech.

In the lone college game this week, Jones and GoalPOST Petie like Maryland over the University of Pittsburgh while the rest of the crew favors the Pitt Panthers to post a victory.
