What do you do at work?

This week, Commonwealth Telephone Company employees showed members of their families what they do at work at "Family Night at Commonwealth," held at the company's service center in Dallas, Pa.

John Menapace, director of network services for the Company, welcomed more than 300 guests and presented the overview of the type of work that is done at the service complex. From there, guests received tours of the facility, participated in drawings for free phones and were treated to refreshments. For the children, there was a clown who performed magic tricks and company service men who supervised rides in the telephone company bucket truck!

Family members toured the complex and listened to presentations on topics such as monitoring the companies 78 telephone exchanges; how customer service representatives handle requests; the trouble reporting system; the repair of electronic equipment; and billing procedures.
