The Lake-Lehman School Board approved the participation of the district in the Mansfield-Utah Tele-teaching Project at last Tuesday's meeting.

The project will provide $10,000 - $12,000 worth of equipment for the district, operating supplies, and specialized training for participating teachers and administrators. Education committee chairman Bing Wolfe said costs to the district will be for providing substitutes for up to seven days for teachers during the training phase and some expense for travel to the training sites.

Value of the satellite system is in excess of $2,000. Money for the project will come from the Vocational Education budget.

The 1986-87 transportation contract including service by 34 buses with four contractors at a cost of $610,923 was approved unanimously by the board. The total contract includes a vandalism allowance to the vehicles and an annual cost adjustment. A total cost of $98,411 for 17 separate contractors serving special routes not serviced by the main bus route contractors was also approved.

Wolfe also told the directors that the Instructional Improvement Grant for "Project Excellence" Phase III was funded $12,262.13 by the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

Angela Casey and Mark Lopasky, high school seniors and Robert Hazletine, Jackson Township, were named to the District's Long Range Planning Steering Committee.

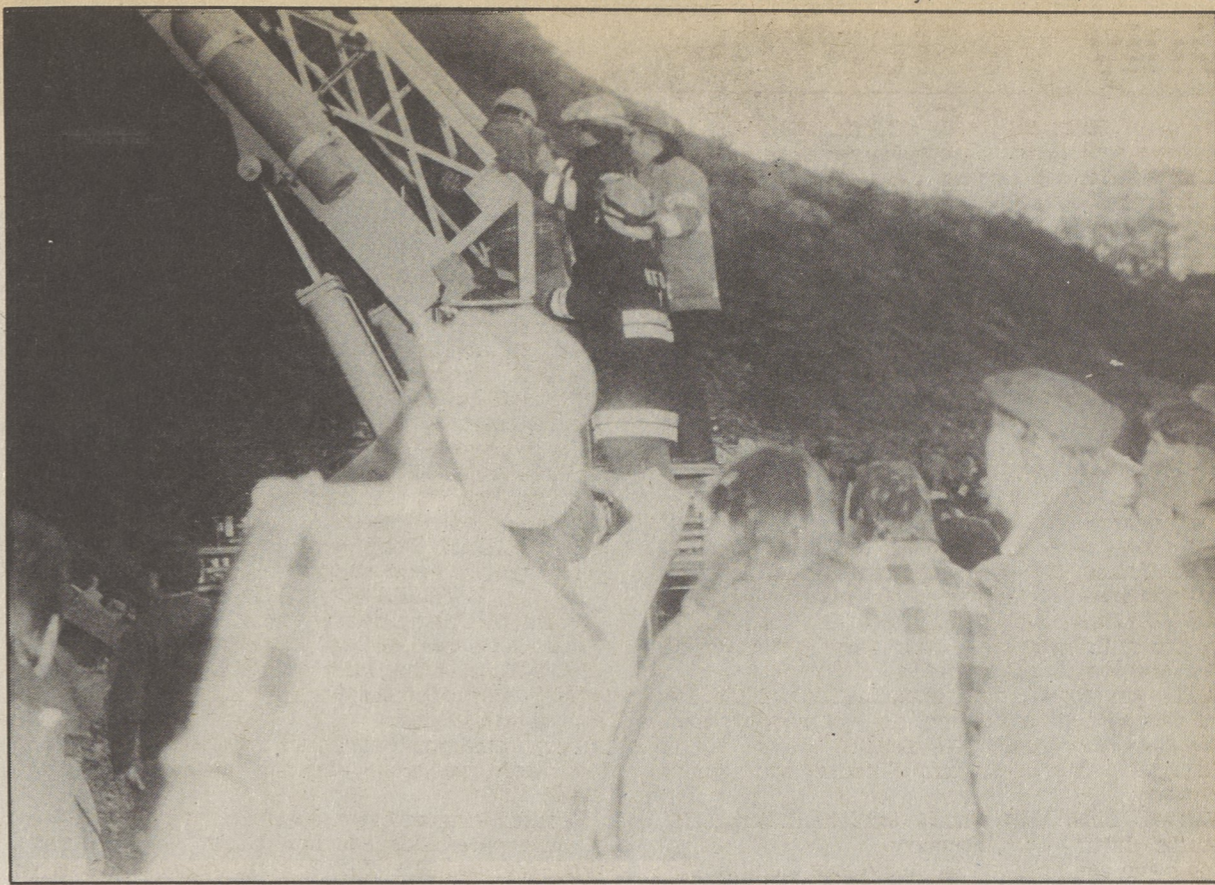

Sandra King, Trucksville, Thomas Kordowski, Sweet Valley, Brian McManus, Wilkes-Barre, Harry Eck, RD 1, Sweet Valley, and Shirley Barnes, Hunlock Creek, were approved as bus drivers.

Michael Leskowsky, graduate of Lake-Lehman High School and a former member of the school's varsity football team, was approved as a volunteer to assist in coaching the varsity team.

The board of directors also approved an AIDS Policy to apply to all students and employees in all programs conducted by the school district. This will include a mandatory course of study in Health Education relative to AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome).

The Ski Club Trip to Steamboat Springs, Colo., Dec. 26-31, was approved by the school board with the cost to be $336.00 for the chaperone.

Rescued from cliff

John Marx of Wilkes-Barre is helped down a ladder by a Kingston Borough fireman after being rescued from a ledge in Courtdale Sunday afternoon. Marx had been hiking with Jeff Reed, also of the city, when he slid approximately 80 feet down a 150 foot slope. Reed went down to help him and the two were subsequently rescued after three youths heard their pleas for help and alerted authorities to the incident.

individual and funnel it through the proper channels."

Another area of concern which Camp reported on was the revision of Sunshine Act 84, requiring that all committee meetings, except personnel, be open to the public beginning in January of this year, something Dallas already does.

Overall, on the educational front, Camp says he feels Dallas has been doing well in comparison with the rest of the state, including in the area of statistics regarding the number of students who go on to higher education.
