

Lehman grapplers

Lake-Lehman Coach Ed Ladamus pins his hopes on Terry Smith, Dave Guzinski and Don Spencer to lead his Black Knights in their wrestling meets this season.

Lehman grappling team 'thin'

"We lack depth on the squad this season," said Lake-Lehman wrestling Coach Ed Ladamus. "We have less than 20 boys working out and many of these are new kids. It's a lot less than usual. If a boy gets hurt we'll be in trouble."

"Over the past few years, we have had a 34-8 record," Ladamus added. "We can't expect to do that well this season. We will have to forfeit 98-lb., unless a boy comes out in the next week or so."

The Knights lost six starters through graduation, two of them, Austin and Joe Smith placed at states. Other starters last year were Mark Yaple, Bill George, Bob Guzinski and Ed Monaco, Terry Smith and Chris Frederick. Timmy Bernick should do well as should Ted Naugle and Tom Wandel but these latter boys need more experience.

Ladamus said in his opinion the teams to beat this year are Wyoming Area, Meyers and Hazleton.

"Maybe it's our turn to lose this year, but we'll be in there doing the best we can. You never know. Our kids are tough competitors," he said.

Stanley Sims is inexperienced but he will wrestle at heavyweight, and Ty Shaw, best jayvee wrestler in the area last year, is working out and will be on the squad. Sophomores Tom Duffy and Sean Clark are working hard and should fit into middleweight spots. Others looking good are Anthony Stratford.

Although the Knights lack depth this season, they have some good wrestlers coming back. Junior Matt Reinert is a good middleweight and Senior Dave Guzinski, injured last season, is a good lightweight. Don Spencer, who suffered an injury in football, is now fully recovered and will be back in the lineup.

Mountaineer grapplers hope for shot at league championship

The Dallas High School wrestling program has been on the downside the last few years. But with 27 lettermen returning from last year's squad, things are finally beginning to look up.

"We can finally see the light at the end of the tunnel," coach Larry Schuler said. "We have six seniors returning and we also have a lot of depth. I can realistically see us going .500 or better."

Jerry Ogurkis, (155), Jim O'Donnell (105-112) Eric Olsen (119) Bill Janosky (138) Mike Richards (138-145) and Gene Faulls (138-145) all had fine seasons last year and should again provide the strength for this year's squad.

But Schuler will have plenty of depth should injuries set in as was the case last year.

O'Donnell, Art Meholchick, Jim Neweel and Dale Morris will operate in the lower weight classes as will Truyen Huynh and Keith Graham, who had an outstanding year last season on the junior varsity level.

Scott Drasin, Nathan Kelly and Lee Williams will be competing at the 132 and 138 classes while Mike Keen, Brian Gay and Ron Post will do so at 145 and 138 respectively.

The Strange brothers, James and John will be at the 155 and 167 pound spots and Paul Meholchick, a senior, will do battle at 167. Dale Williams and Tom Schacht will wrestle in the heavier levels.

"We will be solid through the middle weights, but we are also young," Schuler explained. "Our main goal is to improve on last year's record and to improve steadily as the season progresses"

Wyoming Area and Meyers will probably be the teams to shoot for, but Hanover, Crestwood and Coughlin should all be tough, too. The Mounts, however, will not be intimidated.

"I think we can hang in there with anybody," Schuler said. "But we'll have to shore up a few spots first."

Penn State alumni support Wilkes-Barre campus

Campaign to build high tech center in full gear

Frederick J. Hartwigsen
Vice President, UGI
Penn State Wilkes-Barre
Alumnus 1958, Mechanical
Engineering Technology

"I've been campaigning for years for a bachelor's degree in technology from Penn State to be offered at the Wilkes-Barre Campus. The campus now offers such a program and no one is happier about it than I am. As a past officer of the Chamber of Commerce and the Committee for Economic Growth, I know industries today want to see their personnel continue professional growth. This degree program meets the industry need and provides students the opportunity to continue their Penn State education locally."

Pauly Friedman
Advisory Board Officer
Penn State Alumna 1952
Bachelor of Science

"Among the things that impress me about this campus is the opportunity it provides for young people to be the first in their families to have a university education. Of the Wilkes-Barre Campus students, 71 percent are first generation college. As a Penn State graduate, I feel pride in the accomplishments of students at the local campus. I know that the Center for Technology will greatly enhance their opportunities for a top-quality education in the fields of the future."

J. Robert Harcharik
President, Electronic Mail
Division, MCI, and Penn
State Wilkes-Barre
Alumnus 1960, Electrical
Engineering Technology

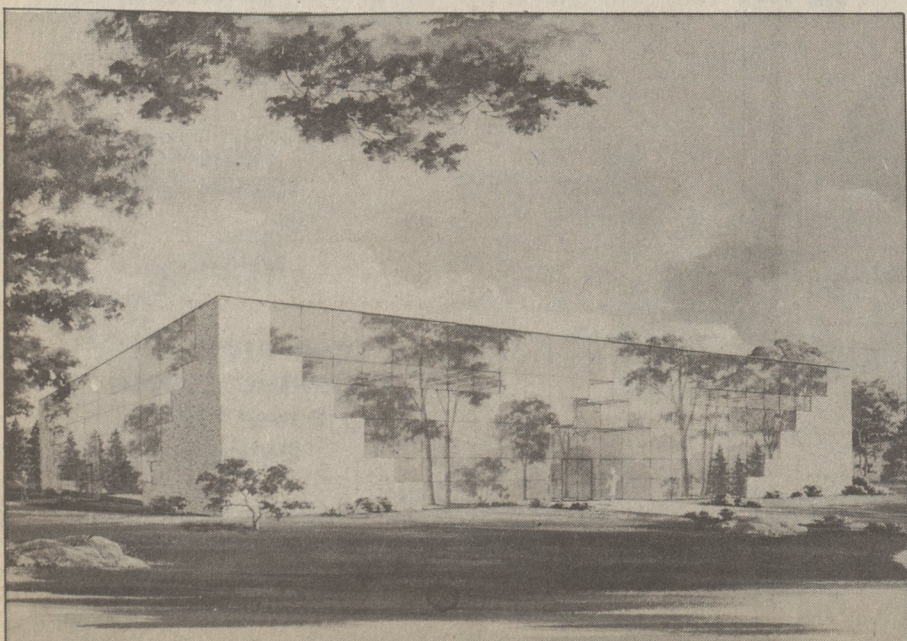

"High-tech and advanced technology firms must locate where there's an abundant supply of technically trained people. A Center for Technology at Penn State Wilkes-Barre would be a crucial factor in changing northeastern Pennsylvania into a growing, thriving community.
"As an alumnus, I strongly recognize the value of the campus's technology program."

Stanley M. Sowa
Vice President, Smith Miller
& Associates, Penn State
Wilkes-Barre Alumnus 1961
Surveying Technology

"The formal education that I received at the Penn State Wilkes-Barre Campus has had a notable, positive impact on both my professional career and my personal life. It provided the foundation and framework upon which my professional career has been built, and it also paved the way for many other opportunities for me. I can comfortably say that many of my achievements in life are tied directly to my Penn State academic background."

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

The Center for Technology plans include state-of-the-art engineering technology, laboratories for mechanical, civil, telecommunications, and biomedical engineering training, as well as manufacturing, CAD/CAM and robotics; a technology demonstration room and clearinghouse; teleconference auditorium; astronomy dome; classrooms and faculty offices.
