Miniatures on display

The Cider Painters of America are exhibiting at College Misericordia's Art Gallery through July 10. Gallery representatives and artists show a few of the paintings. The Cider Painters of America, a national organization dedicated to miniaturism, will have their works on exhibit and for sale at the Gallery.

The Gallery is open Sunday through Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. and on Saturday by appointment only.

Through this annual exhibit and national coordinator and founding member Sue Hand, the Cider Painters enjoy significant popularity in the Back Mountain and Greater Wilkes-Barre areas.

Local groups raise aid for Nicaraguans

Quest for Peace-Northeast, a people-to-people sharing of resources, will begin June 30 at the Farmers' Market, Public Square, Wilkes-Barre. Homemade bread will be sold, to emphasize the theme of "Bread for Peace". Many individuals and organizations in Wyoming Valley, Scranton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Doylestown and Reading are joining together to fill and ship a cargo container (a tractor trailer full) of humanitarian aid to all those civilians affected by the civil war in Nicaragua, regardless of their political beliefs.

The humanitarian aid that is being sought is medical and educational supplies, summer clothes, toys and sports equipment, dried foods, plus raising $6,000 to ship the container to Nicaragua. That cost will be shared by all the cities involved.

At the Farmers' Market on June 30 brochures will be available listing the specific items most needed, and other information. Vouchers will be on sale for those people wishing to have a carton of supplies sent in their name. Ready for loan is a video, A River of Hope, which traces the humanitarian aid from its sources in the U.S. to its delivery to the people of Nicaragua.

Drop-off sites, starting July 1, Monday through Friday, will be the following: Church of Christ Uniting, Kingston, Sprague Ave. entrance 8:30-2:30; St. Vincent de Paul Church (basement) 101 Church St., Plymouth, 9-12 and 1-4; St. Mary's Church, 134 So. Washington St., W-B (garage is in rear of church) 12:45-1:45; and Mercy Center, Lake St., Dallas (garage behind Mercy Center) 9-3.

For further information, call Interfaith Resource Center, 85 W. Union St., 2nd floor, W-B, at 287-6801 (temporary number).

Library news

The dinosaurs have arrived

The Dinosaurs are here! The display case in the main library is now housing some very unique dinosaurs, as part of the library's Dinosaur Summer '88. We have eight dinosaurs in the display and are expecting some more to arrive. The dinosaur should be a small stuffed toy and we need the child's name and age and the name of the dinosaur, if he has a name. The display is complete with a bright red and yellow stegosaurus which is sitting on top of the case and a round, globe-like beach ball covered with prehistoric animals hanging from the ceiling over the display.

This display will coincide with the summer reading program which began on June 20, and is for children in grades one through eight. The game is centered around Dewey, the library dinosaur. Sharing space in the display is Steggy, a Stegosaurus owned by Michael Davies, 5 years old; Rex, a Tyrannosaurus Rex, owned by Kevin McGovern, aged 10; a small Stegosaurus and Tyrannosaurus Rex from Kristen Satkowski, aged 8; Wooly, a woolly mammoth from Paul McGovern, aged 3; a Stegosaurus named Harry from Michael McCartney aged 5; dinosaur twins borrowed from Joey Lynn and Amber Walko, age 9 and 3; Rainbow, a pretty green stegosaurus from David Dwinchick, aged 1½; and Cocoa, a kuddlee saurus from Susan Dwinchick, aged 6. The dinosaurs are settled upon a make believe mountain of rock with real rocks scattered throughout. There is room for more dinosaurs so this is a reminder to the Back Mountain children; Round up your pet dinosaur and bring him to the library to spend time with his relatives.

I was pleasantly surprised last Thursday evening when our own Pamela Ash arrived at the library for a short visit in her light blue cap and gown, having just attended the graduation exercises at Dallas High School. Pam enjoyed her graduation and is looking forward to the start of college life at College Misericordia. Fortunately for the class, the parents and friends, the graduation was able to be outside as the rain held off.

I paid a visit to Mrs. Moss this afternoon, our Ham 'n Yegg lady, who is working very hard on the contributions as they come in. She was happy to report that the total amount mailed in to date is $2,045, which is just great. The goal to be raised for this year's auction is $50,000 and the Ham 'n Yegg contributions is a small, but important, part of that goal. The Antiques Committee is selling chances on antique items at $1.00 each or $5.00 for a book of 6.

Phillips is scholarship finalist

James J. Phillips, R.D. 2, Overbrook Avenue, Dallas, a Marywood College Dietetics major, was recently listed among 20 nationwide finalists in Diet Center's National Scholarship Program.

Diet Center, based in Rexburg, Idaho, attributed Phillips' achievement to sound academic preparation in the Marywood Dietetics Program, a strong interest in the knowledge and promotion of good nutrition, and a commendable career goal.

Phillips was also a recipient of the Marywood College Sister M. Jamesine Fraser Memorial Scholarship. An endowed scholarship, the award was established in 1987 to support full-time undergraduates majoring in Human Ecology with qualifying grade point averages.
