"The people in this region are very friendly and helpful. There are many families at Orchard View Terrace with small children, and it is very family and community oriented here. There is lots of space and a view, and the borough keeps the streets well maintained," Leandri said.

She also mentioned the school system and the access provided by the Cross Valley expressway as factors that helped cinch her family's decision to move.

Peter and Christie Cochran are newcomers to Orchard View Terrace and to northeastern Pennsylvania area. Like many families who have moved to the area recently, they relocated from out of state because of a corporate transfer. They have been living at their new address on Kingswood Drive for three months.

"We just moved from Hillsborough, New Jersey because Peter transferred to Airco-Techworld in Kingston. The quality of life here is 100 percent better than anywhere we have ever lived before. I like the slower pace of life as well as the fact that the cost of living is much cheaper," said Christie.

Many Back Mountain residents interviewed expressed the view that you get 'more for your money' here than in comparable areas out of state, but the cost of real estate is on the rise and may eventually match expensive housing costs in New Jersey and the Philadelphia area.

Established residents of the Back Mountain area do have one benefit resulting from the growing number of people eager to invest in a booming real estate market; their own property values have been substantially increased in a short period of time.

"There is one major advantage to all this development, and that is the real estate value of our home has gone up tremendously!" said Mrs. Pat Depolo of the Woodridge Development in Jackson Township.

The Woodridge development is another development under expansion. A walk down the street in that neighborhood shows the obvious signs of development; structures going up, land being cleared, and newly paved roads. The homes of Woodridge Development are expensive; they sell from $350,000 to $500,000.

"We moved here 15 years ago. There was five homes in the vicinity at that time and a red ash dirt road that saw little traffic. In the past two to three years the whole development just seemed to spring up around us. The whole complexion of life has changed here in a short amount of time," said Depolo.

Misericordia publications win national public relations award

Publication materials developed by College Misericordia for recruiting students and depicting the college have captured national recognition by the National School Public Relations Association (NSPRA).

The judges, all outstanding professionals in the field of print and electronic media, selected 185 winners from 1,340 entries. Misericordia's major Admissions viewbook received a third category college division Award of Honor and its Junior Prospectus and Smart Move pieces were considered superior by the judges.

Winning publications are on display at NSPRA's National Seminar in New Orleans during July.

Assistant Dean of Admissions Mary Siegel and Carol Wall, Communications Manager, work closely with a publications advisory board consisting of students, admissions counselors and student activities representatives to produce the publications.

"Publications need to accurately portray the kind of school we really are or students will be dissatisfied when they arrive," said Carol Wall. Applicants from out of the area often say they investigated Misericordia because they were attracted by the information they received about the school.

Misericordia expects another record entering class this Fall of approximately 300 students, 40 percent from outside the local area.

"The image we project in our publications," said Siegel, "creates a good match between our students and the College."

Harveys Lake Council votes to regulate outhouses

The Harveys Lake Council held their monthly meeting last Tuesday, July 19, and discussed new appointments to the Zoning board, an ordinance on outdoor outhouses, and other items.

Council member Mr. Dave Abod has resigned from the planning commission and was appointed to the zoning board at the meeting to replace one of the two individuals who had resigned. A motion was also carried to appoint William Smisky to the zoning board.

A new ordinance was passed on the regulation of outdoor outhouses and job johnnys at the Lake. It was decided that those who use outdoor outhouses must apply for a permit to the zoning officer for approval.

Resident Shelly Boice mentioned the continued absence of Mayor Boyle at the council meetings, and wanted to know if the mayor had sent any written correspondence to the council regarding his absence.

Council member Kehler said that the council had sent the mayor a registered letter asking him to come to the meetings.

"The Mayor can always be reached by phone and has always done a decent job. He has been running the police department, but his own job has been pulling him away from attendance at the council meeting," said Kehler.

The Monday, July 25 special meeting of the planning commission was mentioned. The meeting was held to review all tabled subdivisions, particularly the Al-Sar Townhouse development. A motion was presented to pass an ordinance that in the future all major subdivisions must have public hearings.

Other items mentioned at the meeting included: a motion to be sent to the Planning Commission regarding rezoning of the Sandy Beach area, and a survey in progress to detect residents who are hooked up to the sewer system and not properly charged for the service.

The meeting adjourned with little public debate on the motions carried or discussed.
