Host family sought

A sixteen year-old young man from Germany has his suitcase packed and ready to come to the northern Luzerne and Wyoming County area—but he has no place to stay. Nico Caspari also has skis and a fishing rod and love for canoeing, which he will bring with him here, if he is invited by a host family.

Cindy and Don Jones of Lehman are the area representatives for ASSE International Student Exchange Programs.

If an area family might be interested in hosting this young man, they should contact Cindy or Don Jones, P.O. Box 178, Lehman, at (717) 675-0387.

Dallas residents to appear in play at Wilkes

Three Dallas residents, D.J. Hopkins, Michael Annetta and Jamie Strange, will appear in "Twelfth Night" as part of the 4th Annual Wilkes College Outdoor Summer Shakespeare Festival. The production, which is open to the public free of charge, will be presented Thursday through Sunday, July 28-31 at 8:15 p.m. on the lawn next to Pickering Hall on the college campus. Audience members are invited to bring their own chairs or beach towels for comfortable seating on the lawn.

Hopkins, who will play the role of "Malvolio," graduated from Dallas High School in 1988, where he played Shakespearean roles in the school's Drama Program's productions of "MacBeth," and "The Tempest."

Annetta is a 1985 graduate of Lake-Lehman High School and is entering his senior year at Penn State's Main campus where he majors in Film and Video. In "Twelfth Night," Annetta will appear as the character "Valentine" and also as an officer.

Strange, who is a senior at Dallas High School, is involved in the Wilkes College Summer Theater workshop. He will be appearing as the character "Curie" and also as a police officer.

"Twelfth Night" is a comedy of mistaken identities, mismatched lovers, and improbable coincidences. "If music be the food of love, play on," and "Some are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon 'em," are just two of the famous lines from the play.
