provision of medical services with the Meadows Nursing Center. Residency in the complex is meant for the elderly to live independently as long as they can, and admission to the Nursing Center is optional if they eventually need long term medical care.

The monthly rental costs are based upon 30% of the monthly income, or a basic rent of $277 for a one bedroom and $297 for a two bedroom, whichever is higher. The limit for rental charge is the estimated market price of $510 for a one-bedroom and $525 for a two bedroom. The tenant must pay for utilities with the exception of water and sewer fees.

The building contains 36 one-bedroom and 4 two-bedroom apartments, with several units able to accommodate handicapped and disabled persons. The rentals include features such as electric range, refrigerator, off-street parking, 24-hour emergency maintenance service, fire and smoke detectors, elevator, and a coin operated laundry. Cable television and air conditioning are available at a minimum charge, if desired.

issues and preventing future water problems.

The majority of the current members of the ad-hoc committee are township supervisors or council members. The elected officials may return to serve on the regional water commission, or individual municipalities may decide to appoint private citizens with training or specific expertise who are interested in participation.

Representatives from the Kingston Township Water Commission served as a sounding board for the ad-hoc committee. The Kingston Township commission has been in existence for close to 20 years and has worked with various water companies and the Department of Environmental Resources on water quality and shortage concerns.

"In general, the goals of the regional water commission involve getting all of the communities in the Back Mountain to 'speak with one voice' in regard to water problems," said Ellie Rodda, who is a member of the Kingston Township Water Commission.

The commission could survey the Back Mountain area for water usage and establish what resources exist, as well as study the effects of development on water problems.

Rates

Hillcrest Water Company average customer's bill for using 4,199 gallons per month will decrease 41 percent from $26.49 to $15.49; and Homesite Water Company's average customer's bill for using 2,750 gallons per month will decrease 36 percent from $18.20 to $11.63.

Oak Hill Water Company files for increase

Six subsidiaries of National Utilities, Inc., Scranton, have asked for Public Utility Commission approval to put in effect in October rate increases totaling $34,800 annually for 979 customers in Wyoming, Luzerne, Monroe, Lackawanna and Susquehanna counties.

Oak Hill Water Co., serving 139 residential customers in a portion of Lehman Township, Luzerne County, filed a $9,261 increase to go in effect October 28. Average yearly bills would go from $267 to $332.

The Rivercrest Sewer Co., serving 166 residential customers in the Rivercrest development of Tunkhannock Township in Wyoming County, seeks a $10,183 increase, effective October 1. Average year bills would go from $412 to $487 under the proposal.

The companies said the additional revenues is needed to meet higher operating costs.

Studies of the boosts have been started by the PUC.

Plan

"After these groups evaluate the various issues and concerns, we will send out their recommendations to everyone on our lists. Following this step we will break into small group meetings or, perhaps, hold one more large group meeting to finalize a plan or plans of action."

Fair

provided with free space to set up stands and operate their own fundraising activities. Commercial exhibitors are charged a fee for the space to operate a stand.

Back Mountain Organizations participating in the Fair include: the Back Mountain Jaycees, Dallas Kiwanis Club, Harveys Lake Women's Club, Lake-Lehman Band Sponsors, Shavertown Fire Company and others.

The fair started in 1963 as a fund raiser for the Dallas Rotary Club, and in 1968 the Rotary was joined by other Back Mountain service clubs to form a core of organizations committed to providing fun and profit on an annual basis to aid both the fairgrounds and the community. The event usually raises approximately $50,000 for the operations and future expansion of the fairgrounds.

"I hope this money raised will go to help the fairgrounds in becoming a recreational center for this area," said Woodward.

"The fair is a great way for non-profit organizations to reach the community and raise money, and for the public it's just great entertainment," he said.

The Luzerne County Fair would have been impossible without the participation of approximately 250 volunteers from the Back Mountain and Wilkes-Barre areas. Every facet of the fair from the arts and crafts and livestock exhibits to the parking and ticketing is run by a separate committee staffed by community volunteers.

The volunteers usually start planning for the fair in January with the State Fair Convention in Lancaster. Some of the entertainer bookings, as well as ideas for future events are obtained through other fair organizers at the convention. By mid-July the committee chairpersons are usually working 15 hours a week on preparations for the event, and once the fair starts volunteers work every night to provide whatever assistance is necessary to make the fair run smoothly.

"One of the worst problems we can come up against is rain. Another difficulty is traffic control and the placement of exhibitors and bands," said Woodward.

Brian Pallis, a Wilkes-Barre resident who co-chairs the Entertainment Committee, said that one year the 'Chicago Mud Wrestler' called him from Wilkes-Barre shortly before they were scheduled to perform and wanted to know how to get to the fairgrounds.

Another year everything was set up and in place for opening night when one of the chairpersons realized that no one had been assigned to staff the ticket booth.

Lake Silkworth resident Marie Dietz, who is a co-chairperson for the fair publicity committee commented, "The week before the fair starts all the volunteers start getting nervous, but somehow it all seems to fall together."

Back Mountain residents who served as committee chairpersons for this year's Luzerne County Fair include: Dana Campbell, Sweet Valley; Gary Hozempa, Dallas; Ayleen Landon, Kunkle; Ralph Sands, Kingston Township; Ed Kelly, Harveys Lake; and Dale Parry, Dallas.
