Library news

BY NANCY KOZEMCHAK

The Back Mountain Memorial Library is fortunate to have a super group of faithful volunteers which give of their time and talent to the library. Jean Warneka of Dallas is one of our dedicated volunteers who comes in most every Friday for three or four hours and shelves books in the main reading room. Along with shelving the returned books, she shelves themselves need to be read; which means making sure the books are in the proper place, according to the Dewey number, on the shelf; and straightened. The most important aspect of the returned books is to make sure the book number matches on the card and the pocket in the back of the book, which is the only sure way to avoid books being slipped wrong.

Jean is one of our faithful Friday volunteers and we appreciate her help. She has been working here since 1985, when she became involved in our move from 69 Main Street into our brand new library. Anyone with a few hours to spare who would like to become involved as a volunteer at the library is welcome to come in and sign up.

Some information on a fun-sounding forth-coming event is the 1989 library auction kick-off dinner dance. It will be a Christmas Dance on Thursday, December 8 at The

A very pleasurable way to donate books to the library is to give them in honor of someone for a special occasion or birthday or just because. Some recent honor books given to the children's room include: "Bossy-boots" by Davis Cox given in honor of Segan Millington upon completion of First Grade, 1988. This is a funny story of how a small girl holds her own against a dastardly robber and is sure to keep readers in stitches. In fact, it's hard not to feel a bit sorry for the poor fellow. He hardly stands a chance against a bossyboots like Abigail. David Cox is an award-winning Australian artist whose most recent book, Ayu and the Perfect Moon was a Reading Rainbow review book. This book has lovely illustrations of the Australian Wild West.

"The Devil and Mother Crump" by Valerie Soho Carey with illustrations by Arnold Lobel is Ms. Carey's first book for Harper & Row. The story goes, Mother Crump was stingy. So stingy you couldn't even ask her for the time of day without her wanting it back. Mother Crump was mean, too. Some folks said she was a 'mean as the Devil'. Lucifer, the Devil, heard the talk and decided to see for himself how mean she really was and that's when the sparks started to fly. This book is in honor of Florence Crump, gift of Jane McMichael.

Dallas fire was arson

BY SARA J. LUNDBERG Managing Editor

An arson barn fire in Dallas Township is under investigation by state police. The fire destroyed a barn on Edinger Hill Road near Lower Demunds road late Saturday night.

Fire Chief Robert Bessecker said the fire, which struck a 2½-story barn owned by Leo Flynn, is the first barn fire in this district since a rash of arson occurred in the Back Mountain last year. Investigation of the scene Monday by visiting state police fire marshal Nicholas Guaska confirmed that it was arson, but would not elaborate on the details of the investigation.

The Dallas area fire company, and state police will be cooperating in the investigation. It is not known at this time whether or not Saturday's fire is related to that possibility arson last year, but that possibility will be investigated.

The fire, reported at approximately 11:25 p.m., engulfed the main structure by the time firefighters from Dallas, Kinsale and Franklin Township arrived. The fire blazed for a few minutes before the fire company was alerted.

Harveys Lake condo plan is opposed

BY SARA J. LUNDBERG Managing Editor

A plan for the first major subdivision at Harveys Lake brought a roomful of concerned Lake residents to the Harveys Lake planning commission meeting Monday night. And though the commission had already granted preliminary approval for the project, residents made it known that they would continue to oppose it.

The proposal is for 29 townhouses on 3½ acres near Barrum Street, about a quarter mile from Hanson's Amusement Park grounds. The application was submitted by Al Morrow, whose townhouses are slated to go up behind Morrow's property on Lake-side Drive.

The application is the first major subdivision ever proposed for Har-veys Lake, is fighting the development. Representing him is Attorney Mark McKealis, who says the development plans submitted are not in accordance with zoning approval and preliminary approval should never have been granted.

An attorney representing Al-Sar Corporation, Michael J. Hudack, claimed the building would not proceed until quality tests are done to meet Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Department of Environmental Resources (DER) standards. The developers claimed that they have already made several changes since the initial proposal to meet zoning requirements.

Sometime in July the fate of the development will be further debated before the borough zoning board. The board will decide if preliminary approval will be granted, and if so, properly granted, and if so, Luzerne County Commission will review the issue.
