Harveys Lake votes to join regional water commission

by SARA J. LUNDBERG
Managing Editor

The Harveys Lake Council voted to appoint a representative to the Back Mountain water commission last Tuesday at the council's monthly meeting.

Dave Abod, a council member, was appointed as the local representative and a motion was made to designate $100 to the official formation of the committee. The committee, which is currently in ad-hoc stages, was formed for the purpose of bringing together representatives from Back Mountain municipalities to address regional water issues.

Chairman Kehler said that the council will not be locked into any type of mandated water regulation through participation in the committee. The motion passed establishes the borough's membership in the committee, but membership can be dropped at any time, said Kehler.

In other business, problems with the Harveys Lake recycling program were discussed. The company that had been providing a dumpster to the borough for recycling purposes is unable to continue with that service, and a statewide mandatory law recently passed has caused the value of solid waste recyclables to drop, according to council member Abod.

Lake resident Al Morrow has donated the use of a tractor-trailer to the program. The next recycling day will be October 29. Items accepted for recycling will be newspapers, brown cardboard, glass separated by color and aluminum cans. Harveys Lake is still in line for a state Department of Environmental Resources (DER) grant for implementation of a curbside pick-up program for recyclables, according to Abod.

Also at the meeting, the council heard complaints from several residents about the condition of the borough's roads. Council members responded to resident's complaints of drainage and pothole problems with the promise that potholes will be filled and roads will be oiled by the end of November.

The council will advertise bids for the road oiling next week and residents will be notified when roads will be oiled.
