Junior High Council holds election

In an effort to increase awareness of the presidential election, the Dallas Junior High School Student Council has sponsored Election '88 Activities this past month. Harold E. Taylor, Coordinator of Special Projects for Pennsylvania Gas and Water Company generously loaned two historical displays to the school. Mr. Taylor credited Paul Gates and Sidney Chesnic for their assistance in designing and creating these portable displays which commemorate the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence and color portraits of the presidents of the United States from Washington through Reagan. These displays, originally created to honor the nation's bicentennial, are a proud testament to our nation's heritage.

Student Council members and interested students have videotaped the Bush-Dukakis debates, held an Issues Facing America poster contest, and have conducted a schoolwide presidential election.

Other activities are planned through the inauguration of the newly-elected president.

During Health Care Awareness Day at College Misericordia, Dr. Florence Bourcier, acting chair of the Nursing Division, joined a panel discussion between the college allied health faculty and area high school guidance counselors and students. John Francis, administrator of Nesbitt Memorial Hospital delivered the keynote address, "Health Care Opportunities in the 90's."

Misericordia's allied health faculty led the panel discussion. Lab demonstrations in biology, medical technology, nursing, occupational therapy and radiography followed. The events took place in Misericordia's newly renovated $2 million Hafey-McCormick Science Hall.

Local guidance counselors and students learned about the need for health-care professionals in the greater Wilkes-Barre area and around the country.

After Francis spoke,

Representatives from Lake-Lehman attend conference

Representatives from the Lake-Lehman School District recently attended a Parent Awareness Training Conference at Mountain Laurels Resort, White Haven. The conference was planned jointly by the Pennsylvania Department of Education and the Pennsylvania Association of Federal Program Coordinators. Parents and teachers involved with the ECIA Chapter I Reading and Math programs were invited to attend.

The sessions were specifically designed to give parents and teachers ideas for working together to help children succeed in school. Parents were presented with activities and suggestions that could be used to help their children with math and reading skills, textbook use, homework, and general school performance. Included in the program also were sessions dealing with parenting and communication skills, children's self-esteem and proper nutrition. Crisis related topics such as suicide, drug abuse, and AIDS were also addressed. Those people attending were Maryann Hardisky, Patricia Peiffer and Jeanne Swainberg.

Dallas Peer Helpers welcome new students

On September 27th the Dallas Senior High Peer Helpers had a breakfast to welcome the new students that moved into the District. Approximately 23 new students were invited. Every new student is assigned a Peer Helper who is to help get the new student acquainted with the building, the faculty, the curriculum and the student body. This is the second year the Peer Helper Program has been in existence at the high school. First row, new students: Selena Cobb, Alejandro Ortiz, Diane Demko, Melissa Redmond, Robert Wright, Damon Lisnow, Heidi Ashton, Patty McCabe and Tom O'Donnell. Second row, Peer Helpers, Mrs. Russin, Guidance Counselor; Mark Paczewski, Mary Lou Baines, Molly Connolly, Emery Yurko, Deric Petrini, Peter Solinsky, Kim Chapple, Karen Klick, Amy Kowalski, Patricia Cominsky, Jay Cherup, Tina Strom, Steve Oliver, Sam Jayne, Mark Labbate, and Mr. Galicki, Principal.

Penn State lab to be named for C-TEC

The telecommunications technology laboratory in the new Penn State Wilkes-Barre Center for Technology will be named the C-TEC Telecommunications Laboratory. C-TEC was one of the first contributors to the fundraising campaign to build the facility, donating $50,000 for a laboratory. Construction on the new center began this week. The $3.5 million Center will house laboratories in engineering technology, classrooms, a teleconference auditorium and an astronomy dome. The Center will open for classes in the Fall of 1989.

Representatives of C-TEC and its subsidiary, Commonwealth Telephone, have worked closely with Penn State Wilkes-Barre faculty on the development of the campus telecommunications technology program which began in 1980. More than 30 campus telecommunications technology alumni now work for the company.
