since Wycallis had said projected enrollment at the Dallas Senior High School would decrease over the next three years from the present 490 to approximately 435, then show an increase after that time to the present number. Director Ellen Nagy reminded Camp that with moving up the ninth grade students to the senior high, the enrollment would increase to approximately 600, which would justify the additional classrooms and the renovated home economics area.

The directors also approved a motion by John George to obtain an appraisal on the entire Dallas Township property on Church Street, Dallas, including the present administration building.

A motion by director Tex Wilson to appropriate $35 to each member of the championship teams in the district during the fall season failed due to a second to the motion. Director John George explained that he refused to second the motion because he believed the members of the football team should be given $50 since they won the Eastern Conference B Division championship for two consecutive years. The appropriated money was to have been used toward the championship rings for each of the members of the winning teams.

George stated that board members will discuss spending millions of dollars toward renovations in the district but give no consideration to the achievements of the students.

Director Clarence Michaels asked student activities chairperson Tex Wilson if he would also be in favor of allocating money for jackets to the academic students to which Wilson replied yes, if Michaels was willing to work toward raising money as the football program does.

The board also approved the interim action of the superintendent to appoint Roy Wall as assistant wrestling coach for the senior high team effective November 18 and the interim action to permit the Dallas Senior High cheerleaders to attend the United Cheerleaders Association Eastern Regionals at Rutgers University, December 10 at a cost of $776.

The recommendation to compensate the senior and junior high coaches who worked with the fall championship teams was approved by a 5-3 vote with James Richardson, Dr. Camp and Clarence Michael abstaining due to their objection to compensating the junior high coaches.

William Kvashay was approved as the winter track coach for the school year 1988-1989 at as salary of $600. Other coaches appointed for the 1988-1989 school year were senior high: John Wolensky, head coach, Mark Koval, assistant, baseball; Jay Pope, head coach, Yvonne Mould, softball; Donna Trebilcock, volleyball; William Straitiff, head coach, Mary Ann Walsh, assistant girls, Stephen Kaschenbach, assistant boys, track; Thomas Kilduff, tennis; Joseph B. Flaherty, assistant, basketball.

Blood

because of increased major illnesses."

Lloyd said the Dallas and Lake-Lehman high schools have usually been generous when they have drives and the churches, which come under community are also generous.

The shortage has been so critical nationwide that blood must be imported from other countries. This blood is tested very thoroughly by the American Red Cross before it is accepted for use here.

Lloyd cited one case where a hospital patient was in critical condition and needed a certain type of blood but the American Red Cross Center had only seven units on the shelf. The decision was up to the doctors whether to use the blood on the elderly patient or let the patient die and save the blood for others. The doctors decided to use it and, fortunately, the patient recovered.

That is just one example of how critical the need can become.

The revitalized council will face the challenge of recruiting volunteers to serve in leadership positions, volunteers to man phones, and to recruit and register donors.

There will be another blood drive January 9, from 1 to 6 p.m. at Meadows Nursing Center and volunteers will be needed for that collection. A second drive will be February 2, from Noon to 6 p.m. at Dallas U.M. Church.

The need for donors is important. Only 1.5 percent of the population give blood annually and volunteers can give five times a year. Donors do not have to donate blood at a community drive but can go to the Regional Blood Center, which is open every day for blood collection.

As an example of the recent shortfalls, the drive at Gate of Heaven School, which has been very successful for years, had a goal of 200 pints, but only 116 were collected.

Paul Hodges, a director of the blood center, said that only 85 percent of the blood which should be given is collected annually but locally, the difference has been made up by careful management.

Hodges said that the center does not use a replacement policy from donors because it is too difficult to ask for replacement when a loved one is ill and needs blood.

If there are friends who offer later the blood center will accept their offer.

Donors are accepted if they weigh no less than 110 pounds, are between the ages of 17 and 75 years of age, take no antibiotics, and have no cancer nor heart problems.

"The blood bank is lower than it has ever been in the past," Hodges said. "It is imperative that we increase our supply in order to save lives."

engineer will review all activities for the past six months, according to Coyle, although he did say that he has not received a copy of the 'word-for-word' agreement and until he does receive such copy, he is not certain of the specific steps to be taken.

Coyle did explain that the agreement does not pertain to Deer Meadows only but to any new applications to the company for service. He also said that the settlement does not necessarily prevent Deer Meadows from continuing with development nor prevent a new owner from receiving service.

Provision of service depends upon the company's review and approval. As Coyle understands presently, a public hearing will be held every six months over a two year period. He emphasized, however, that this explanation is contingent on the legal statement of agreement drawn up and signed by both parties, the company and the complainants.
