Misericordia students complete community service project

Eleven students from College Misericordia's social work program formed the foundation of a volunteer corps to provide assistance with reading and study skills for the school-age children of O'Karma Terrace, Wilkes-Barre. The students worked through the leadership of Project Remain, an outreach program sponsored by the Sisters of Mercy. The Misericordia students will receive college credit for their four-month community service work. Together at Misericordia are students and coordinators of the program, from left, seated, students Romayne McLaughlin, Noel Powers, Amy Bennett; Sr. Miriam Francis Stadulis, RSM, director of Project Remain; and students Kathy Sebastinas and Beth Socher. Standing, students Leila Deeb, Nadine Milazzo, Jennie Joseph, James Calderone, assistant professor of social work at Misericordia, and students Teri Dylo, Alan Erdman and Maria Yudicki.

Penn State offers arts and nutrition courses

Penn State Wilkes-Barre will offer new courses in nutrition and the performing arts for the spring semester, offered via satellite from Penn State's University Park campus.

Of special interest to health care professionals, "Introductory Principles of Nutrition," will run Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4-5:15 p.m. Featuring the book Introductory Nutrition, by Helen A. Guthrie, the class will be taught by J. Renee Matich, MS, RD.

Arts 005 "The Performing Arts," is an exploration into the world of the arts that use the person, the self, as the primary vehicle for artistic expression. It will include a look at works of music, dance, theater, and musical drama as well as the lives of the artists that perform them. It will be offered Monday evenings from 6-7:15 p.m. and Thursday evenings 7-9 p.m. Registration for all Penn State Wilkes-Barre spring 1989 courses can be made by contacting the campus at 675-9100 or 1-800-426-2358.

Back Mountain students are officers at O'Reilly

The Bishop O'Reilly High School (Kingston) Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) has elected officers for the current academic year. The officers will be responsible for planning and coordinating the chapter's upcoming winter and spring activities, including fund-raising and service for the FBLA state project "Special Olympics" and attendance at regional and state workshops and conferences.
