Carter named vice president at Diamond Manufacturing

Donald E. Carter has been promoted to Vice President of Sales and Marketing at Diamond Manufacturing Company. An employee of Diamond nearly 21 years, Carter joined the Sales Staff in early 1968, and in 1970 became the Assistant Sales Manager. In 1973 he was appointed General Sales Manager and in early 1988 named Director of Sales and Marketing.

In his new position, Carter will be responsible for Diamond's sales and marketing efforts which include a network of more than 20 sales agencies across the United States, a distributor in Texas and a warehouse in California.

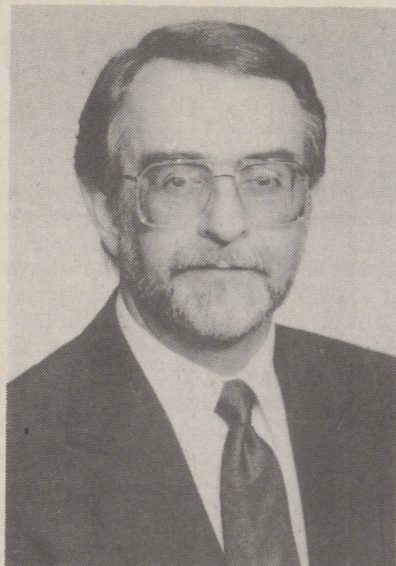

Recently honored for his personal efforts in preparing and hosting Diamond's National Sales meeting, Carter has amassed over 30 years experience in manufacturing with the majority of that time spent in sales management.

A graduate of Kingston High School, Carter resides in Dallas. His five children are all located in the Wyoming Valley.

Carter is a member of George M. Dallas, Lodge #531, Caldwell Consistory and Irem Temple.

Founded in 1915, Diamond Manufacturing Company is the largest manufacturer of perforated metal in the United States, processing more than 50 million pounds of materials in the course of one year. Diamond services markets such petrochemical, electronics, furniture, automotive and HVAC, and employs 120 at the facility in Wyoming, Pa.

Harper and Row publishes Stevan Davies' third book

Dr. Stevan Davies, professor in the Division of Religious Studies and Philosophy at College Misericordia, recently published his third book, "The New Testament - A Contemporary Introduction," through Harper and Row. The hardcover text will be offered to colleges and universities across the country encouraging students to read and study the New Testament following widely accepted scholarly methods.

ment guides because comparisons between the New Testament texts are encouraged rather than the isolation of each text. Davies also maintains parallel structure throughout each chapter, to help organize Biblical study.

Since earning his Ph.D. at Temple University, Davies has contributed to four books and has plans to write two others. He has studied under National Endowments for the Humanities Summer Seminars and Fellowships at Princeton University, Duke University and Brown University.

Drs. Camp, Myers receive new appointments at LCCC

For the first time in the 21-year history of Luzerne County Community College, the position of Provost will exist following the appointment of Dr. William D. Camp, a resident of Dallas, to that position. As Provost, Dr. Camp will be the chief academic officer, reporting directly to the president, assisting as assigned in the ongoing operations of the college, and serving as the ranking administrative officer in the absence of the President.

Dr. William D. Camp

Dr. Byron E. Myers, also a Dallas resident, who has guided the college's academic progress as dean of academic affairs, will become the dean of business, engineering and technology as his position reflects the institution's growing enrollment in those fields.

Dr. Ann Morgan Williams, a graduate of Wilkes College and a Wilkes-Barre resident, will become the dean of arts and sciences, handling a growing number of academic demands in those areas as well as overseeing a vast number of students in general studies.

Dr. Camp joined the community college in 1968 as professor of history and sociology. From 1971 to 1986, he served as chairperson of the Social Science/History Department at LCCC; and in 1986 was appointed to his current position of associate dean of academic services.

During his tenure at LCCC, Dr. Camp has served as chairperson of the college's Presidential Commission Committee, Committee on Academic Excellence, Admissions and Academic Standards Committee; and also served on the 1974 LCCC Presidential Search Committee. Dr. Camp received his bachelor's degree from Gordon College in Massachusetts; his master's degree from Fairleigh Dickinson University; and a doctorate of arts from Carnegie-Mellon University.

Dr. Camp was accepted as a Fulbright Scholar in the Summer of 1984 and traveled to the Netherlands; and in the Summer of 1985 was accepted to the National Endowment to the Humanities at Brandeis University, Massachusetts. He has also served as a lecturer for the American Overseas Study Program in 1973 and 1980, and lectured and toured in England, Switzerland, France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Greece, Belgium and Austria.

Dr. Camp served as a school board director for the Dallas School District from 1981-88, and served as president of that Board in 1983. He resides in Dallas with his wife, Ann, and children Bill Jr. and Adrienne.

Dr. Myers, who is currently serving as dean of academic services at LCCC, began with the college in 1971 as associate dean of technical career programs. In 1974, Dr. Myers was appointed to his present position.

Dr. Myers received a bachelor's degree from Lock Haven State College; a master's degree from the Pennsylvania State University; and a doctorate in education from the Pennsylvania State University.

Dr. Myers is currently serving as president of the Pennsylvania Association of Two-Year Colleges; and also serves on the Community College Deans of Pennsylvania, American Association for Higher Education, Council for the Advancement of Experiential Learning, Northeast Regional Planning Council for Higher Education, and the American Vocational Association.

Myers resides in Dallas with his wife, Jean. They have two daughters, Marjorie and Leslie.
