Women's Network seeks Pathfinders

The Women's Network of Luzerne County is seeking nominees for the 1989 Pathfinder's Award which will be presented June 3 at the Fifth Annual Luzerne County Women's Conference.

The Pathfinder's Award recognizes the women of this county who have challenged the traditional assumptions of women's role and, in so doing, have blazed new trails, according to the Pathfinder Committee chairperson, Sherry Martin. She said past recipients have demonstrated the qualities of dignity and endurance that serve as role modeling for generations of women to follow.

Nominations may be submitted by any person or organization. The deadline is April 30. All entries must include the name, address and background of the nominee, including details of why she is a candidate for a Pathfinder Award. Send nominations to the Women's Network, Box 2686, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. 18703.

Past recipients of the award include Helen O'Connor, Ethel Price, Martha Reese, all in the arena of politics; Madge Benovitz, Joyce Davis and Negro Women's Community League, Susan Sordoni, Patricia Davies and Nancy Noonan, in the field of education; Rev. Anita Ambrose, Sister Julian Baird RSM, June Blum Golubock, in the field of religion; Lea Csala in peace activity; Evelyn Gurbst in the child care field, and Phyllis Belk in activity for women's equity.

The Women's Network was founded in 1984 to bring together women of all backgrounds, ages, economic resources and who share an interest in improving the climate for women in Northeastern Pennsylvania. The Pathfinder Awards were initiated by the Women's Network in 1975. The Network is also the prime sponsor of the annual Luzerne County Women's Conference which was attended last year by more than 600 persons. This year's conference will again be held at Penn State Wilkes-Barre, on June 3, and will offer more than 50 workshops on topics of interest to women.

The Pathfinder nominations will be reviewed and the recipient(s) selected by the planning committee for the conference. Ellen Smith and Beth Sowers are chairpersons of the conference. Sally Lottick and Phyllis Belk are serving with Sherry Martin on the Pathfinder Committee.
