David Crake and Myron Pitcavage

Dallas High debaters advance to national meet

David Crake and Myron Pitcavage, qualified for one of the top four on the 1989 national forensics team, and will advance to the nationals in Pennsburg, competing with schools from all over the country.

The boys, both junior debaters at West Scranton High School among a field of seven teams.

Candace Fike, Dallas debate advisor for the past three years, said "This is an amazing feat for their first year in the program."

The Dallas High School debate teams are members of the Catholic Forensic League which includes 23 schools. In Wyoming Valley, Dallas, John S. Fine and Bishop Hoban are the only members.

The students in the program will present a forensics program for the high school students May 10.

In addition to Crake and Pitcavage, Michael Dzanko, Dallas student, made it to the final rounds of competition on extemporaneous speaking; and Kristin Gurdin made it to the semi-finals on oral interpretation of literature.

Education programs on tap at Frances Slocum Park

Frances Slocum State Park is once again offering environmental education services to school groups for the spring and fall of 1989.

Reservations for mid-April and early May are now being accepted by park naturalist, Angela Wassel.

Programs run approximately one hour and are held at the Environmental Education Center or outside on park grounds. Topics of study may be arranged to fit curriculum needs.

For more information contact Frances Slocum State Park at 696-3525 between 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

"Hot Careers" Subject of Penn State Career Information Night on April 20

Are you unemployed, a displaced worker, affected by company cutbacks, or thinking about changing careers? If the answer to any of these questions is yes then take the first step to a new career by coming to the Penn State campus in Lehman, April 20. College officials in the job placement bureau and the counseling department have planned an informative program on careers for the 90's that are hot.

Recently, the Bureau of Labor projected jobs for college-trained technicians are expected to increase approximately 70% by the year 2000. Keeping this in mind, Penn State Wilkes-Barre arranged the Career Information Night on Thursday, April 20, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Bierley Auditorium of the science building at the Penn State Wilkes-Barre campus in Lehman. The program, entitled "Hot Careers in the 90's," will help the prospective student discover why college graduates in engineering technology fields are in demand.

Penn State faculty and career counselors will be on hand along with industry representatives to answer questions.

According to Helen Stager, Coordinator, Opportunities in Technology Program (OIT), the program will feature information on the following educational and career opportunities: telecommunications technology, biomedical equipment technology, electrical engineering technology, mechanical engineering technology, surveying technology, and business administration with an emphasis in management information systems.

Ms. Stager said, "Graduates of programs with an associate degree in engineering technology fields frequently earn higher entry salaries than many baccalaureate graduates in other fields."

The combination of pay scale with the time frame required to complete the associate degree make these programs especially attractive to the adult student.

Ms. Stager also points out that technology careers are great opportunities for women currently entering the job market. Comparing earnings of women in a traditionally female occupation to a career in technology, women can expect to earn a comparable salary with men, as opposed to 70% of the salary in fields traditionally held by women.

This program is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Admissions Office at Penn State Wilkes-Barre at (717) 675-9238.

Program at Dallas Middle School

Recently Ms. Candice Mamary presented a series of mental health programs to the eighth grade students in the Dallas Middle School. The topic of the series was suicide. Students viewed videos which was followed up by a question and answer session.

Parent observation day Friday

The Lake-Lehman ECIA Remedial Reading and Math classes will conduct a parental observation day on Friday, April 14, 1989.

All parents of children enrolled in these programs are invited and encouraged to attend. An observation day like this will enable you, as parents, to see how these classes work and to watch your child in a learning environment.

A notice will be sent home with your child prior to April 14 regarding the time(s) he/she attends such classes so that you can make arrangements to be there.
