

Shawn Murphy, Sister Finley honored

Two local women were among the four area women, who were presented with the Annual Pathfinders Award at the 1989 Luzerne County Women's Conference last Saturday held at the Wilkes-Barre Campus of Penn State University.

Sherry Martin, chairperson of the Pathfinders, presented the awards to Shawn Murphy, Dallas; Sister Mary Siena Finley, Dallas; Harriet McGeehan, West Hazleton and Audrey W. Spence, Wilkes-Barre.

The women who receive the annual awards are selected because they have challenged the traditional assumptions of women's role in society and have helped improve the quality of life in Luzerne County.

Mrs. Murphy is president of the Pennsylvania Women's Campaign Fund, that contributes financial support to women running for office, president of the Children and Youth Board, president of Planned Parenthood of Pennsylvania Affiliates and vice president of Community Services for Planned Parenthood of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

She has also contributed through membership to the Rural Health Board of Northeastern Pennsylvania, Dallas and Montessori School Boards, Project Upward Bound, and Malabar Drug and Rehabilitation.

Sister Finley is founder and executive director of the Ethics Institute of Northeast Pennsylvania, a non-partisan forum that exchanges ideas and explores ethical issues through workshops, lectures and conferences, an Ethical Resource Center, institutional consultation and continuing education programs.

She has been on the faculty at College Misericordia for more than 15 years and has received the Distinction of Devoted Service to the cause of Human Welfare award, and the Sister of Mercy award.

Neither Sister Finley nor Mrs. Murphy were aware they were to be recipients of the award until the day of the conference. Murphy was also the coordinator and leader of one of the workshops at Saturday's Conference, which was termed a success by the conference committee leadership.

Levitsky tops in electronics meet

Tom Levitsky, Dallas, a 1987 Associate Degree graduate of Penn State Wilkes-Barre Campus who continued his education at Penn State Capital College in Harrisburg, won first place in the IEEE (Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers) student branch senior design project contest. Levitsky shared the award with Sandra A. Mayers of Wilkes-Barre.

The IEEE is an international organization of professionals and students in the electrical engineering field. Each year the student branch at the Harrisburg campus holds this contest which is judged by professors and professionals from local industries.

The award winning project, a Home Energy Usage Monitor, records detailed information about energy usage habits. Measurements are stored in a microcomputer which then allows access for computation of predicted monthly electric bills or for other electric company purposes.

Levitsky received an Associate Degree in Electrical Engineering Technology (2EET) from Penn State Wilkes-Barre in 1987. Last month he was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering Technology.

Levitsky has accepted a position as electrical engineer with Phasor Corporation of Shavertown.
