Anzalones to sing at Pine Brook

The Anzalone Brothers started their careers as entertainers when Ange was 5 and Jim was 7. The brothers began performing in minstrel shows, fundraising events, and community-oriented affairs while still in short pants in the late 50's. As the Nolan Brothers in the late 50's, they appeared at major Catskill resorts.

While in the Catskills, they performed at hotels and resorts and then in college in 1965 the brothers were entertainers at Penn State University, performing Kingston Trio type folk songs.

Jim now lives in Lehman with his wife the former Jesse Conyng-ham. He is a member of the Pennsylvania and Luzerne County Bar

Associations, a former assistant public defender and assistant district attorney. He is currently engaged in the general practice of law in Wilkes-Barre, and teaches in the Paralegal program at Penn State University, Wilkes-Barre campus.

Ange is a physician and is on staff at the Wilkes-Barre General Hospital, Nesbitt Memorial Hospital and Mercy Hospital, Wilkes-Barre. He is board certified in Family Practice and practices family medicine in the Back Mountain area. He is a member of The American Medical Association, Pennsylvania Medical Society, Luzerne County Medical Society, and American Academy of Family Practice. He lives in Huntsville with his wife, the former Barbara Woronko.

THEY CALL THE WIND MARIA - or so sang the Anzalone Brothers at Schaub Auditorium, University Park, Pa., May 1965. They will be singing again but this time at the Pinebrook Inn, Dallas on Friday, June 23, 1989. There will be two evening performances. Reservations can be made by calling 675-3550.
