DER forms emergency response team

The Department of Environmental Resources (DER) Wilkes-Barre Regional Director Ed Shoener recently announced the formation of a regional emergency response team that will improve DER's capability to rapidly respond to spills and other incidents involving hazardous materials throughout the nine-county Wilkes-Barre Region.

"The regional emergency response team enhances the Department's ability to protect public health and the environment," said Shoener. "The team consists of 14 staff specialists in air and water quality, waste management, water supplies and sanitation. They will insure that responsible parties take the appropriate timely actions at spills or other emergency situations," Shoener stated.

The regional Emergency Response program manager and his assistant will supervise the team, which is available to respond around-the-clock.

"This team gives the regional office the ability to provide prompt analysis of spills or emergency situations, and to provide that information to public and private officials to speed clean up actions," concluded Shoener.

Citizens and public officials can report environmental emergency situations in the Wilkes-Barre Region by calling (717) 826-2511 at any time of the day or night.

Attorney Mark McNelis, attorney for Nelen, an engineer and environmental officials told the commission that the Pennsylvania Gas & Water Company, Department of Environmental Resources and the Dallas Water Company had given written approval to the manner and work of the subdivision development.

Luzerne County Engineer James Brozena, surveyor Frank Grabow-ski and Drew Fitch of R.N. Fitch & Sons also spoke on behalf of Nelen. R.N. Fitch & Sons has done much of the site work on the development.

Jean Gayle, a Dallas resident, said that 51 homes connected to the Dallas Water Company service will have a negative effect on water pressure, which she claimed is already low in the Dallas area.

Hiller also said that county planning commission ordinances were violated because one section of the zoning code stipulates that runoff water onto other persons' property must be prevented unless the developer has written permission from the owners. She claimed that is happening, and that the plans for Deer Meadow do not address drainage at all.

Adrian Merolli, director ofthe Luzerne County Planning Commission told the members the staff recommended final approval for the project based on all available information they had. Chairman Alan Major, Robert Betzler and Robert Zinn gave the final approval.

The commission also approved preliminary plans presented by James Wisniewski and Geraldine Wisniewski, developers of the Stonehedge sub-division in Dallas Borough. David Sutton of Pasonick Engineers and the engineer for Wisniewski's project testified for the developers.

FAMILY LEAVE LEGISLATION The House Labor Relations Committee this week took testimony on a measure which would provide Pennsylvania workers with guaranteed leave from their job to care for a newborn child, foster child or seriously ill family member.

The bill would allow employees to take up to 18 weeks of unpaid leave over a two-year period for family care and up to 26 weeks for a serious personal illness. The employer would be obligated to continue company health and other benefits during the leave.

The program would affect employers with 10 or more workers. Supporters of the legislation contend that it would encourage fam ily stability in Pennsylvania. Rep. Jeffrey E. Piccola (R-Dauphin), Republican chairman of the committee, opposed the measure saying it would hurt businesses. especially small employers, and noted that unpaid leave would be used primarily by employees who could afford the loss in income.
