Walsh twins head their separate ways

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Writer

After spending their years in public school and college together, as well as the greater part of their summers, Joseph and James Walsh, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walsh of Dallas, parted last Sunday for at least the next three years.

Joseph left Sunday morning for Berlin, West Germany where he will be stationed for the next three years, after training in Fort Benning, Georgia.

The twins graduated together from Dallas Senior High School, then both attended Edinboro University and graduated in May, 1988. Following Edinboro, the brothers spent the summer together, then Joseph entered the U.S. Army and trained for six months in Airborne, Ranger and Impoc school. Jim, after earning his degree in criminal justice, went into the master's degree program in organization communication for a semester at Edinboro, then took off a semester to pursue law school and took a job as a guard at the county prison for six months.

Joe, graduated from Edinboro with a degree in elementary education and was an honor student. When he entered college in 1984 he became a member of the R.O.T.C. and thus, was able to attend college on a scholarship.

Jim recently received word that he has been accepted at the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing, Michigan for September, 1990. He considers himself very fortunate, since there were 2,000 applicants for only 200 openings. With Joe having gone to Berlin for the next three years, Jim plans to work at Villa Roma where he worked when in high school until he starts college next year.

While Joe was training at Fort Benning, and Jim was between jobs he decided to take a bicycle trip to Nova Scotia and covered 1100 miles. It took him 11 days to make the trip; six days to reach Portland, Maine on his bike, four days touring Nova Scotia, and the remainder of time on the ship to and from Portland and Nova Scotia. When he returned to Portland from Nova Scotia, Jim flew home to be back before Joe left for Germany.

When Joe returns from Germany, he plans to work toward his master's degree in Early Childhood Development. While in Germany he plans to take video photos of all the countries he is able to visit and use them for teaching when he returns to the States.

While the two brothers were in high school Joe was the athlete and Jim was the bike rider. Jim, while in Edinboro rode his bike home while Joe put his bike on the car and drove home.

But, Joe hopes that while he is in Germany he will be able to purchase a mountain bike and tour the country. While in Berlin, he would like to have an opportunity to visit Russia and see what it is like.

The Walsh family had a family gathering last weekend to bid Joe 'farewell'. The twins enjoyed the one last time they would all be together for three years - mother and dad, Paul, Mary Ann, Kathy, Eileen, and the two boys, Joe and Jim.

"It's going to be strange without Joe at home," Jim said.

"The whole family will miss him, but for me - it will be the first time Joe and I have been separated for such a long time and so many miles apart."

Several new courses for Misericordia's students

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Writer

College Misericordia will welcome 250 incoming freshmen this semester as well as 50 transfer students for an overall student population of approximately 1200.

Most of the students come from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, although there are students from other parts of the country.

New at the college this year are job training and career placement for ALP students, a program which helps learning disabled students participating in the Alternative Learners Project prepare for professional jobs, find the jobs and maintain them. This placement program has received a grant from the U.S. Department of Education to develop a model project. Also new this year is the Chemical Addictions Certificate, the first in Wyoming Valley. It is a 15-credit program, has no pre-requisites, and is open to all College Misericordia students and community professionals who work with drug or alcohol addicts. The college designed the program with help from Carmen Ambrosino, of the Wyoming Valley Alcohol and Drug Services and a certified addictions counselor.

College Misericordia is changing the structure of its graduate level Human Services Administration program this year to reflect the changing needs of business and non-profit service communities. The program will be called Organization Management and will have two tracks, Human Resource Management and Human Services Management. These tracks deal with personnel management and management in the not-for-profit sector.

Scott Kalicki is the new Dean of Students. He is from Widener University, Chester, and will be responsible for all aspects of student life.

College Misericordia now has men's collegiate basketball, baseball and soccer; and for the women students there are basketball, field hockey, softball and volleyball.

The college is looking toward a successful year under the direction of its new president, Dr. Pasquale "Pat" DiPasquale, Jr., formerly of Miami, Florida, who assumed his position, June 1.

Movie fans have a course all their own at Penn State

'THE ART OF THE CINEMA' STARTS THURSDAY

Film buffs alert - How about a course that allows you to see "Top Gun," "Citizen Kane," and "Chinatown," and "Singing in the Rain," and "Repo-man," - as well as clips from early film classics of Hollywood, Germany, USSR? A course that also gives you three college credits, and, in keeping with modern technology, is provided via satellite with interactive video.

Penn State Wilkes-Barre is offering a three credit general education arts course beginning August 24, and running every Tuesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. entitled "The Art of Cinema" by satellite.

The course will examine the development of cinema as an artform and industry from its start through the present. To enroll, call the registrar at (717) 675-9100 or 1-800-426-2358.

A person may register the first night of classes also.

Attention will be directed to subsequent efforts emphasizing modes of cinematic articulation. German silent contributions to the treatment of space, light and composition, and Soviet silent developments of editing techniques, will be examined in the light of coincidental American approaches to cinematic form.

The course instructor is William C. Uricchio, Ph.D., assistant professor, in Penn State's School of Communications. Dr. Uricchio is the former director of the George Amberg Film Study Center at NYU. He has produced and directed documentary films and television programs. He has also received the 1988 Excellence in Advising Award from the Academic Assembly of the Undergraduate Student Government.

THE DALLAS POST

Can you help with our 100th Anniversary Edition?

On October 18, The Dallas Post will publish a special issue to commemorate its 100th year of publication. We invite our readers to help make this event even more special by submitting material they think might be appropriate. These might include:

- Old copies of The Post
- Photos of the Back Mountain
- Stories about The Post or the region in years past
- Ideas for articles
- Material about other long-established local institutions
- Information about other important events of 1889

All materials will be handled carefully and returned. In most cases, we will photograph items and use the photos we have taken.

For more information about how you can help us celebrate this important occasion, please call or write:
