veloped into the flourishing business it is today before his death in 1866. His son-in-law, Thomas Gauntlett, who was involved in the business at the time, too over as president assisted his wife Susan, senior vice president, and brother-in-law, Gray Ide, vice president.

The first major growth in Payne Printery took place from 1982 to 1986, when sales increased to $2 million. In the last three and a half years, sales have grown from $5.2 to $9.5 million and employment has doubled from 52 to 104, a far number from the three original employees 40 years ago.

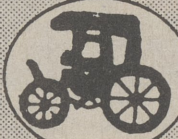

The business has reached the point where more facilities are needed for the bindery, warehouse and pressroom, as well as space for parking which has become a major problem in the area on Lake Street and East Center Hill Road where the business is now located.

All work done at Payne Printery is first. There is no web press. The company does work for companies in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Washington, D.C., and is continuing to grow. The majority of its sales at present are in New York and New Jersey, but are expanding to other areas rapidly.

"We are proud of the work we do, Gauntlett said, "And I give most of the credit to our employees who are not only dedicated but are among the most capable in their line of any I know, they work as a team and without this we would not be as successful as we have been."
