

Dr. Paul Zbiek

Dr. Sheldon Spear

Spear, Zbiek will speak at history conference

Two area professors will be featured speakers at a history conference entitled, "The History of Northeastern Pennsylvania: The Last 100 Years," on Friday, October 27, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Luzerne County Community College Educational Conference Center.

The conference is sponsored by the community college's social science/history department, and is open to the public, free of charge.

Dr. Sheldon Spear, of Shavertown, professor of history at LCCC, will speak on the Wyoming Valley during the Great Depression. The presentation will focus on the impact the depression had on the people of the area. Dr. Spear will discuss how the people of the area dealt with the depression; the steps the area took to recover from the depression; and the general effect the Great Depression had on the people of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Dr. Spear is the author of "Chapters in Wyoming Valley History", an essentially biographical examination of the history of the Wilkes-Barre area. His other works include "The U.S. & The Persecution of the Jews in Germany 1933-1939" and "Pacifist Radicalism in the Postwar British Labour Party:

The Case of E.D. Morel."

Dr. Paul Zbiek, of Harveys Lake, assistant professor of history at King's College, will speak on the importance of high school sports in Northeastern Pennsylvania. Dr. Zbiek's discussion will examine how high school sports evolved in the Wyoming Valley and the effect they had on the many small communities in the region.

The lecture will focus on such topics as: the relationship between student development and athletic achievement; the strong community identification with their local teams; the role of athletics in the ethnic assimilation process; and how the total experience brought about a unifying spirit in each community, but at the same time caused increased separatism in the Wyoming Valley as a whole.

Dr. Zbiek has published articles on the ethnic history of Pennsylvania, and is completing An Ethnic and Cultural Atlas of the Wyoming Valley, which is planned for publication next year.

For more information on the history conference at Luzerne County Community College, contact Dr. Robert Mittrick, chairperson of the LCCC social science/history department, at 821-1512.
