

Dallas in the early years

At the left is a photo of the Dallas Post Office when it was located on Main Street. Later it moved to the Garinger building on Lake Street and then to the new building where it is today. Top right, State Road, Dallas, when it was first constructed; bottom right, Lake Street, Dallas, when it was still a dirt road.

What does it take to be the best?

Hard work. Perseverance. Dedication. Standards of academic quality that challenge students to reach their full potential. Growth of campus facilities which provide a variety of living and learning options for resident and commuting students alike. Support from alumni who have succeeded, and who lead the campaigns to help today's students succeed. The resolve of the faculty to treat students as individuals, to teach them not only how to make a living but also how to live. Most of all, the determination to be the best, which has yielded national recognition of King's College's programs, faculty, and students. These are the qualities needed to be the best.

THE BEST FOR YOU
