Citizens' Council memberships begin to flow in

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Writer

"I'm not sure of just how many memberships have come in," said Will Conyngham, vice president of the Back Mountain Citizens Council last week. "Our treasurer Jackie Williams is out of town but I would estimate that we have about $1500 in our account.

"This will probably be tagged for legal fees and for mailings since we have a sizeable list of interested persons. The local Penn State Campus has been helping us with the mailings in the past but it's about time we started on our own,"

Conyngham said.

He also said the Council has discussed a general zoning map but he doesn't believe the map cost will be exorbitant. "We will have to discuss it with some of the local architects, they should have a better idea."

Light

township, according to Box, received a request by the county and state to submit a letter requesting the lights be provided so that government highway maintenance funds could be allotted to the project.

The township has refused to submit the letter, asking the county and state to show them a traffic study showing the need for the light. Box has repeatedly said other intersections in the township and in other townships need traffic lights before the Hillside Road intersection.

Box said Monday that unless the supervisors decide in the near future to change their position on the light proposal, he will inform the county that the township will not aid in installation of the lights.

Box has requested that the public offer their views on the light proposal for the supervisors to consider.
