Correction

A story in the November 8 issue of The Dallas Post concerning the Dallas Borough manager's resignation had several errors in it due to paste-up. The sixth paragraph should have read "There is recycling which we have done nothing about to date, grant applications to be filled in and submitted to the proper agencies, water connection problems, sewage lines, employees to supervise and dozens of letters and other paperwork," Strosnider explained. The paragraph beginning "Strosnider said that she worked," should have read: Strosnider said that she worked a total of 106 hours from October 9 through Thursday, November 2, one of those days from morning until about 12:45 a.m. the next morning. She received $312 for the total hours. The paragraph beginning with "The road workers were given only 25 cents more per hour and" should have read "The road workers were given only 25 cents more per hour and the police are in arbitration."

Flags

spoke with Russ the week before and felt the issue should be corrected. Russ mentioned other businesses in the township that fly flags and banners, but go unwarmed. He mentioned two fast food restaurants, Burger King and McDonalds. Both had flags and banners flying as of Friday. The supervisors agreed to look into the matter and review the ordinance. They agreed to report their findings to the public at their next monthly meeting in December. Other businesses in the township that were flying flags or banners Friday included D's Bridal, Back Mountain Hardware, Rave's Nursery, and BackStreet Fashions.

TEACHERS HONORED - Dallas Elementary teachers Shirley Breyemeier and Barbara Reilly were named 'Teachers of the Year' by College Misericordia last week.

Two Dallas teachers honored as 'outstanding'

By CHARLOT M. DENMON
Staff Writer

In special ceremonies Thursday afternoon at College Misericordia, two teachers from Dallas Elementary School were named "Outstanding Teachers of the Year", and presented awards for their outstanding education in the classroom.

Mrs. Barbara Reilly, fourth grade teacher, and Mrs. Shirley Breyemeier, special education teacher were honored for their contributions to education.

Mrs. Shirley Breyemeier is a native of the Back Mountain and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown. She attended Dallas Schools, but graduated from Sayre High School. She received her B.S. in education from College Misericordia and her Master's in special education from Marywood College, Scranton.

Like Mrs. Reilly, Breyemeier has taught at Dallas since 1972 for the LIU 18. This year she teaches kindergarten through third grade, but in the past has taught first through fourth and kindergarten through sixth.

"I teach all subjects," Breyemeier said. "It's something like a one-room schoolhouse. The students are the educable mentally retarded (about two years below their average grade level). I enjoy working with them," Breyemeier said.

She resides with her husband Albert and two children on Hickory Street, Dallas, and spends her leisure time in family oriented activities of the schools in the Back Mountain.

Mrs. Reilly is a member of the Dallas Education Association and Mrs. Breyemeier is a member of the LIU 18 staff assigned to the special education classes at Dallas Elementary.

Reilly, a native of Wilkes-Barre, attended Wilkes-Barre City schools, graduating from Meyers High School. She received her baccalaureate degree and her master's degree in elementary education from Wilkes College. She also attended Temple University and is doing graduate work at the present time.

She accepted a teaching position in Dallas in 1972 following the flood and has taught fourth grade classes since that time in Westmoreland, Dallas Township and most recently, Dallas Elementary School.

Lehman

with the Lehman Township Municipal Authority if it is determined the cause of the problem is sewage infiltration. If it is, the supervisors will ask the authority to conduct a feasibility study to determine what steps can be taken to correct the problem.

Oak Hill is the only section of the township that has a sewer system in place. The remainder of the township relies on septic systems. According to a spokeswoman at Kirby Health Center, "When septic tanks are in the ground for a long period of time they can develop leaks. These leaks could cause contamination of the ground."

She went on to explain that the ground contamination could then seep into the wells contaminating the water. However, it has not been determined if sewage is causing the problem.

Repeated attempts to contact Ide for further information were unsuccessful.

Lehman Township is the second Back Mountain community to face drinking water contamination this year. Many Harveys Lake residents discovered their drinking wells contaminated with bacteria in May. Some of the bacterial contamination has been found to be fecal, deriving from human waste.

Harveys Lake is still experiencing contamination problems, with tests showing results up to eighty times the legal, safe drinking limit. Kirby Health Center has been conducting the tests for Harveys Lake.

Harveys Lake Borough is still searching for the source or sources of that area's contamination problems. Miniature cameras were brought in to the lake area last month to study the sewer system as a possible source, but found no leaks or breaks.

The Department of Environmental Resources is assisting the borough in finding the source of the contamination. Tests taken by DER are being studied in Harrisburg and results are due back soon.

The contamination at the lake has been blamed by several residents for illnesses in that community, the worst case being bacterial pneumonia. No illnesses have been reported in Lehman Township in connection with the tainted water.

Kingston Twp. drops $5 tax

By SCOTT A. DAVIS
Post Staff

The Kingston Township supervisors gave preliminary approval to the township's 1990 budget at their meeting Wednesday night. The budget requires no increase in taxes, and in a surprising move, the supervisors announced elimination of the $5 per capita tax.
