Misericordia ALP program awarded grants

College Misericordia's Alternative Learner's Project (ALP), has been awarded two federal grants totaling nearly $140,000, said Dr. Mary Glennon, RSM, academic team.

The grants, given by the U.S. Department of Education, are for the 1989-90 school year.

One of the grants, for $70,429, will pay for the third year of Misericordia's program to train seconddary teachers to more effectively prepare learning disabled students for college. During the program's first two years, nearly 600 high school teachers from throughout the state took part in the grant's activities, which included a one-day workshop held in sites around the state and a week-long training program at Misericordia.

The second grant, for $61,500, will fund the first year development of a three-year career training program for college students who are learning disabled. This program will establish a career awareness and transition program model to be used at colleges and universities throughout the country.

Dr. Joseph Rogan, professor of special education and director of Misericordia's ALP, is directing the activities of each grant.

Penn State-WB kicks-off annual fund drive

The Penn State Wilkes-Barre Annual Fund Steering Committee met recently to kick-off the 1989-90 Annual Fund Campaign. The Annual Fund raises monies for scholarships and special faculty projects on the campus in Lehman.

"Last year's campaign raised $100,000, an all-time record with this year's goal set to exceed $125,000," said Joseph Rymar, Chairman of the Annual Fund. A majority of the money raised provides scholarships to Penn State Wilkes-Barre students.

This year, 69 scholarships were provided at Penn State Wilkes-Barre, 55 were made possible by the Annual Fund monies. This year's recipients include 29 freshmen and 26 sophomores.

"As a campus alum, I've been able to watch the Annual Fund grow," said Rymar. "It is important to exceed last year's total so that not only can the University increase the number of scholarships, but the average size of the awards."
