Harlem Globetrotters to play at King's Friday

As part of their 1990 world tour, the Harlem Globetrotters will play the Washington Generals at King's College on Friday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the Scandlon Physical Education Center on North Main Street.

Tickets can be purchased during the hours of 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. in King's athletic office on the second floor of the Scandlon Center. According to John Dorish, athletic director at King's adult tickets are $12, while tickets for students and senior citizens cost $10.

The Globetrotters, who have played in 110 countries throughout the world, began their current in October of 1989 with a world-record sports winning streak of 6,695 consecutive games. The last time they lost to the Generals was in 1971. Since their initial tour in 1927, the Globetrotters have logged nearly four million miles, playing approximately 20,000 games before well over 100 million people.

"No matter where we play, there's never been a language barrier to our famous, good-natured style of humor," said Joseph Anzivino, vice president and general manager of the Globetrotters. "The team has proven for 64 years that laughter really is the universal language of the planet."
