Lake-Lehman teacher honored

Mrs. Christine Kopcho has been recognized by the Mathematics Education Class at Wilkes College as a teacher who has inspired others to consider the teaching profession as a career and whose classroom actions have had a profound effect on the lives of her students. Mrs. Kopcho was recommended for the honor by Mark Zurinski who remembered Mrs. Kopcho as being an excellent teacher whose excitement about learning spread to all of her students, and whose A.P. Biology Class gave them ahead start in college that few high school students receive. Pictured above is Mrs. Christine Kopcho, Science teacher at Lake-Lehman High School with some of her students. Dallas students learn all about bees

Students at Dallas Elementary School recently enjoyed an assembly program and workshops titled "Dancin' with the Honey Bees" presented by Cliff Wright - Sunflower of Honey Bear Farms.

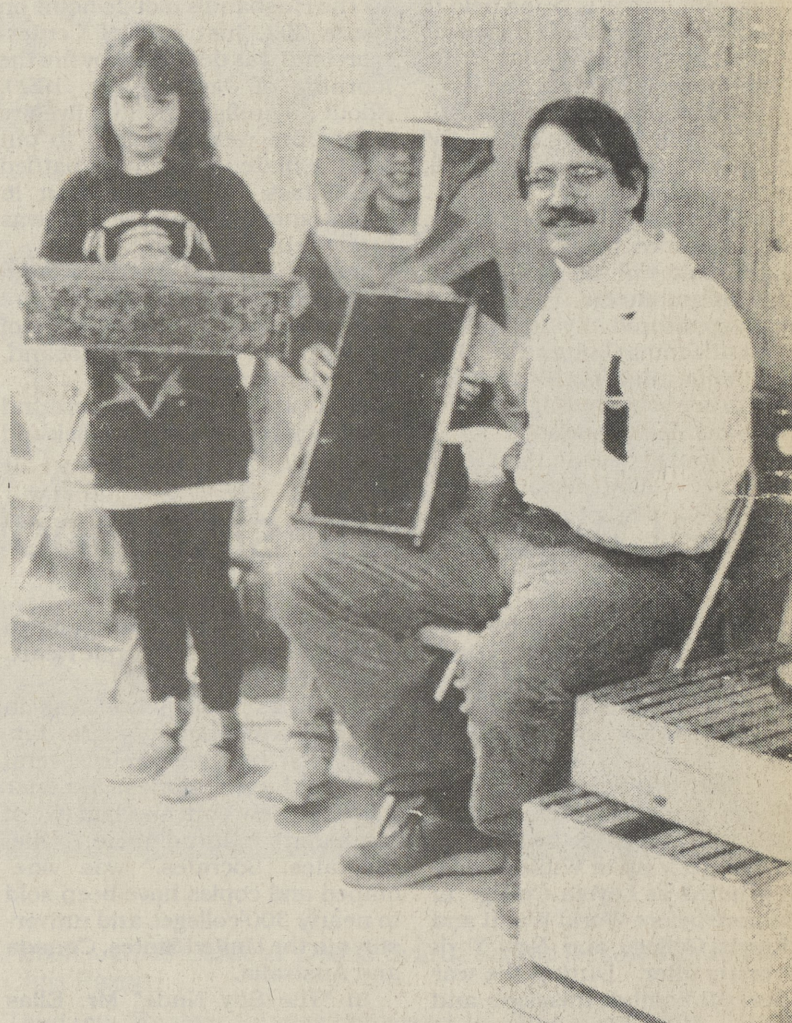

"Dancin' with the Honeybees" is an environmental science program with concepts, facts and ideas of how humans are connected to the natural world. This cultural arts program includes poetry, prose, puppetry, music, mime, dance and participatory theatre.

The program included an observation hive of 5,000 bees enclosed behind glass and the precision of a beekeeper working a beehive. The entire assembly was turned into a working hive, complete with queen, nursemaids, baby bees, construction workers, drones, guards and flowers.

The children learned first-hand about the delicate balance of the bee colony and the world around it; how fruits and flowers depend on bees to reproduce, and how important that is to all humans.

After this "Honeybee Dance," the children met in workshops to taste various honeys, to feel and smell beeswax closeup and to learn to distinguish honey hives from other nests.

The children were able to share their bee fears, experiences and questions and made a beeswax candle to take home.

BEES AND ME - Cliff Wright-Sunflower of Bear Honey Flowers, Bath, entertained the students of Dallas Elementary School with a 'Bees and Me' program including games, dancing and a beekeeper demonstration with bees and their hive.
