Music Box holds family picnic

The Music Box Players recently held their First Annual Picnic at the summer home of Hank and Mickey Bartos in Noxen. A short business meeting was conducted by Robert Hensley, president and Debbie Zehner, vice-president. Evelyn Tomasovic reported on the newly revised By-Laws, and Milt Millington asked for the cooperation of all of the Music Box Players in the day to day operation of the theatre. Ted Anderson was elected to the Board of Directors by the Players Organization.

Following the meeting, everyone enjoyed volleyball, badminton and swimming on the Bartos' beautifully landscaped 85-acre tract of land. A sumptuous dinner buffet followed, which was prepared by the Bartos family, and included delicious hot and cold entrees. Traditional picnic foods were also available throughout the day. The picnic was concluded with an evening sing-along which was led by Milt Millington, with Nancy Evans at the piano. Pictured above are some of the more than 100 Music Box Players attending.

Interfaith Resource Center to present film Sept. 26

The Interfaith Resource Center for Peace and Justice is proud to announce the local showing of the film, "Weapons of the Spirit," on Wednesday, September 26, at the Gateway Cinema, Edwardsville.

"Weapons of the Spirit" poignantly depicts the mass effort to save the lives of 5,000 Jews during World War II in the French Village of Le Chambon, situated 40 miles from the Vichy border. Rooted in their Christian faith, Chamboniers refused to give into the Nazi's, risking persecution and death for turning their simple mountain village into a sanctuary.

Pierre Sauvage, director of "Weapons of the Spirit," returned to Le Chambon, his birthplace, intending to produce a film about the Allied decision not to bomb the railroad tracks leading to Auschwitz. Instead, Sauvage decided to recreate the story surrounding the Le Chambon sanctuary which he calls, "The conspiracy of goodness". During interviews Sauvage conducted for background to the film, he asked the old villagers why they risked their lives giving safe harbor to the Jews. An elderly villager replied, "It's a normal thing to do".

"Weapons of the Spirit" is being hailed coast to coast by critics as the film about the Holocaust which depicts the spirit and optimism during the world's dark time. Desmond Ryan of the Philadelphia Inquirer writes, "...a film bulging with profound questions of morality, responsibility and religion."

Tickets may be purchased for the 5:30, 7:30 and 9:15 p.m. showings of "Weapons of the Spirit" at the Book and Record Mart, South Main Street, Wilkes-Barre, The Jewish Community Center, South River Street, Wilkes-Barre, and the Tudor Book Shop, Wyoming Ave., Kingston. Tickets may also be purchased through the Interfaith Resource Center at 68 South Franklin Street, Wilkes-Barre, across from the Oysterhout Library. Cost is $5.00 per ticket for all showings. All proceeds benefit the Interfaith Resource Center.

The Interfaith Resource Center for Peace and Justice serves the community through presentations, a resource library, co-sponsors films, and speakers which enrich and educate the area on current interfaith issues. Director, Sister Constance Kozel welcomes inquirers to call at 823-9977.

Victims Resource Center seeks volunteer help

The Victims Resource Center is in need of volunteers to aid them in their work with victims of crimes. In addition to working with victims and their families, volunteer opportunities include assisting with educational programs, fund raising, clerical work, and special projects such as the Mock Rape Trial held each October. Many volunteers also serve as counselor/advocates, crisis intervention/Hot Line workers, public speakers and educational presenters to school children and professional and community groups. Internship for college students are welcome. Volunteer training is scheduled to begin on Thursday, September 6, from 7 to 9 p.m. at both of the Center's offices in Luzerne and Wyoming Counties. Those unable to attend this mandatory first session can attend the session scheduled on Friday, September 7 at 10 a.m. at 68 South Franklin Street in Wilkes-Barre.

Volunteer training allows participants to explore their feelings concerning victimization as well as the myths and problems faced by victims of all ages and crimes. Also included are various aspects of police and court procedures and medical and community services.

Practical exercises are incorporated in the training to demonstrate helpful counseling techniques used in assisting victims and their families as they deal with the realities of victimization. These realities include facing major disruptions in their lives such as economic hardships, medical problems, feelings of fear, loss of personal freedom and often times, revictimization.

Those interested in becoming a VRC volunteer must attend the first training session which includes a preview of VRC services and volunteer responsibilities. For additional information, call 823-0766 in Wilkes-Barre; 454-7200 in Hazleton or 836-5544 in Tunkhannock.
