THE DALLAS POST

EDITORIALS

It's time to tax fairly in Luzerne County

The 1991 Luzerne County budget contains no tax increases, but retains the onerous "personal property tax" on out-of-state investments. It also includes $1.1 million in revenues from the sale of county-owned land in Drums, an item that also appeared in the 1990 budget.

Luzerne County should eliminate these two revenue sources and replace them with a fair real estate tax based on up-to-date assessments of property. Of course, such a move has been regarded as political suicide, probably correctly.

There hasn't been a reassessment of all property in Luzerne County for more than 60 years. But spot reassessment takes place every time a home is sold to someone other than a relative. That means if you've recently bought a home you are paying taxes on its current value while your neighbors pay based on outdated valuations. That's not only unfair, it has led to abuse as properties are improperly transferred among family members simply for the purpose of avoiding tax increases.

The only remedy for this outlandish situation is state law requiring reassessment at regular periods. Many states have adopted ten-year intervals as the most logical amount of time between assessments. That makes sense, since so much can change in even one decade.

Regular reassessment coupled with reasonable tax rates could be one of the key items in our region's progress. When individuals and business leaders know they will be treated fairly, they are more willing to make investments. But when a new home or factory is burdened with taxes in order to preserve the status quo for others, the investment becomes less attractive, and perhaps discouraging enough to drive the investor

Like most municipal governments, Luzerne County will face increasing challenges to its effort to provide needed services to its constituents. Being saddled with an outdated tax base will make the delivery of those services more difficult. But political realism dictates that a change of this magnitude must be initiated at the state or even national level.

America shouldn't be the world's cop

An increasing number of Americans are questioning our nation's role in the crisis in the Mideast, not because they think Saddam Hussein shouldn't be stopped, but because they believe the United States should not play world policeman. There is merit in that argument; if nations that are closer to Iraq and more dependent on that region's oil are unwilling to commit more troops and money to the fight, why should we?

In one sense, President Bush's quick action in meeting the threat posed by Saddam almost seems an extension of the "noblesse oblige" side of Mr. Bush's character. Raised in comfort and affluence, Mr. Bush often espouses the belief that he must repay his good fortune in service to the American people. At the same time, the President gives the impression that he and his operatives should be left alone to work their magic, since they are endowed with wisdom beyond that possessed by the general public.

The danger in all of this is that the United States is quick to take responsibility for saving the world while other nations sit back and enjoy the benefits without paying the cost. Does that mean the U.S. shouldn't pursue its goals in Operation Desert Shield. No, not at this point. But we would be wise to examine future crises with a more pragmatic eye, or we may in fact become traffic cops for the very nations that are eating our economic lunch.

Published Weekly by Bartsen Media, Inc. P.O. Box 366, Dallas PA 18612 Telephone: 717-675-5211

Ronald A. Bartizek Editor and Publisher

Charlotte E. Bartizek Associate Publisher

Charlot M. Denmon

Reporter

Peggy Young Advertising Acct. Exec.

Composition

Paul Rismiller

Anderson afield

Although humans don't seem to tolerate other humans very well,

there are some critters that seem to benefit from having us around.

not found north of our border.

wild grasses. Coyotes were really abundant only in the West and Southwest. White-tailed deer could find very little to browse or

By JOHN M. ANDERSON

Rich Johnson Reporter Jean Hillard

Olga Kostrobala Classified/typesetting

AND THE PENNSYLVANIA NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER'S ASSOCIATION

Winter wonderland

(Photo by Charlotte Bartizek)

Friends of the Library raise record total

By NANCY KOZEMCHAK

The Back Mountain Memorial Library Friends of the Library campaign for 1990 has reached a ever received for this campaign.

receive an informative letter in the beginning of each new year telling them of the on-going needs of the library financial picture. Any monetary contributions is accepted and is added to the Friends total. The Friends campaign is a major financial endeavor and is a main line item in the library annual bury, newly widowed and an heirbudget each year. Our library is always happy to welcome new "Friends".

We have a regular over-due book calling policy in which we try to contact our borrowers when their books are one week overdue. One day last week a young boy was in with his mother returning an overdue book and said he was at home when the 'library police' called. That was his version of our reminder call. We charge 10 cents a charge to us Dallas area soldiers day for an adult and 5 cents a day for a childrens book; and we do try to remind our patrons of the overdues before they become too late. The fine money collected during the year is also an important item in our annual financial budget.

Our new system of handing out working out well and each new ess, has been kidnapped and forced borrower will receive his number to wed. Her new husband is the and card within a week after joinborrowers to come in to the library fortune-hunting de Vilers family. total of $8,966, the largest amount and pick up your library card so Margaret struggles to make a home The Friends are loyal members and be ready to present it at the ily; but even the ghost is spiteful and patrons of the library who front desk when borrowing books. At the present moment, we have which is our current account of registered active borrowers.

Pursuit of the Green Lion" by Judith Merkle Riley takes place in the year 1356 when Margaret of Ash-un-frocked monk Brother Gregory, ing the library. We would urge the younger son of the piratical, you will have it to carry with you for her daughters among the fam-

"The Plains of Passage" by Jean prepared 11,419 library cards, M. Auelis the continuation of Ayla's story. They set out on horseback across the windswept grasslands New books at the library: "In of Ice Age Europe. To the huntergatherers of their world, Ayla and Jondalar appear enigmatic and frightening. An astonishing novel of discovery, danger, and love.

Letter

Soldier says thanks for papers

This is to say "thank you' for mailing your newspaper free of serving in "Operation Desert Shield." You can't image how wonderful it is to read the news from home. I even enjoy the ads!

I really appreciate it and think it's a nice gesture. We have received so many nice letters and packages from Americans every-

God Bless you and please keep us in your thoughts and prayers. SPC. Bonnie Futch Adams Dallas '78

Editor's note: The Dallas Post makes free six-month subscriptions available to local soldiers stationed with Operation Desert Shield. The subscriptions are made possible by United Penn Bank, which pays for

The various animal rightists organizations have declared that and using them for medical research denies those animals of their "rights". Others say using animals for any human purpose mustt be stopped. Alex Pacheco, of People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals ("PETA") says, "Arson, property destruction, burglary and theft

are acceptable crimes when used

Pacheco don't get out to Parramore

Island before the scientists develop a means of saving raccoons from

Let's hope the likes of Mr.

for the animals' cause".

Only yesterday

50 Years Ago - Dec. 30, 1940 STUDENTS RETURN TO CLASSES AFTER BREAK

A candlelight Communion Service was held at Trucksville Methodist Church for Christmas Eve.

Marvin Elston, John Honeywell, Stanley Hoyt, Dana Campbell, Henry Shupp, and John Parsons of Kunkle have returned home from Indiantown Gap.

Dallas Township and Kingston Township students will return to classes January 2 but Dallas Borough and Lehman students will not return to school until January

Mrs. Joseph Wallo was named general chairperson of the Henry Laing Fire Company's Auxiliary card party to be held January 9.

Harter basketball team defeated the Lehman High School cagers 30-21 in a hard fought battle on the Lehman cagers court.

40 Years Ago - Dec. 29, 1950 WOUNDED SOLDIER RETURNS TO AREA

Russell Honeywell who was discharged from the Barton Me morial Building, Jefferson Hospital, after two serious operations has arrived home and wishes everyone a very Happy New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Garinger celebrated their 20th anniversary with an open house and buffet supper at their Harveys Lake Modern and Square dancing will be held at Kunkle Fire Hall, New Year's Eve, sponsored by the Kunkle Volunteer Fire Company.

Dallas cagers will play at Plymouth, Lake players will play Lehman; and Dallas Township will meet Kingston in league competition, Jan. 9.

Mr. Eight Eighty starring Burl Lancaster is playing at the Himmler

Robert Kemmerer, left for dead on a Korean battlefield, is making progress at Bethesda Hospital and has visited his home town, Shavertown. He was machine-gunned after seeing only 19 days of action.

30 Years Ago - Dec. 29. 1960 MEEKER SELECTED AS GIRL OF THE MONTH

The Back Mountain region experiences arctic temperatures with 18 degrees below at Pikes Creek. Six below was clocked in Dalla and in between were temperatures of minus 14 at Alderson, minus 10 at Laketon and minus 10 at Ide-

Local skiers report skiing conditions are the best in some years at the Denton Run west of Wellsboro and the renovated Elk Lake near Lenoxville.

Donna Meeker was selected as 'School Girl ofthe Month' by the Harveys Lake Women's Service

Gerald Wagner, Lehman; James Kozemchak, Jr., Huntsville; and Joe Schneider, Dallas, are spending two weeks in training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Sta

Walt Disney's "Ten Who Dared" is playing at Forty Fort Theatre.

20 Years Ago - Dec. 29, 1970 AREA MEN TAKE SAILBOAT CRUISE

Back Mountain road crew labored long and hard during the past two weeks keeping the roads and highways clear for the motor-

Wilkes College announces the offering of home and school visitor graduate courses for the 1971

The IRS announces changed ir the tax laws for the 1970 income

George Jacobs, Shavertown, and Charles Malkemas, formerly of Shavertown, left for a 16-week cruise of the Caribbean on Malkemas' 26-foot trimaron sail-

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stitzer of Shavertown celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary.

Newly-wed Viola Blizzard Robbins was guest of honor at a bridal keeping laboratory animals in pens shower at the Lutheran Parish Hall.

10 Years Ago - Dec. 31, 1980 COUNTY LOSES NUMBERS IN CENSUS

The Children's Museum, Forty Fort is sponsoring holiday open hours everyday through Jan. 4 except New Year's Day, featuring one different and exciting workshop each day.

The Bureau of Census notifies Luzerne County that the county lost 4,724 in the 1980 census.

Lake-Lehman Title 1 participates in on-site evaluations by the Pennsylvania Department of Eduof the National Audubon Society cation whose team found the projing federal and state E.S.E.A. regulations, instructions and policies. Lake-Lehman defeats Nanticoke

Meyers defeats the Dallas Moun-

but loses to Crestwood. taineers.

Office Manager MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL NEWSPAPER ASSOCIATION

library cards to each patron is where and it lets us know how them.

Oral rabies vaccine for raccoons may soon be available pets a little safer.

Because rabies in raccoons have

If conditions for safety and efficacy can be met, the vaccine should prove useful for immunizing wild

Since it is an oral vaccine, there's no need to live-trap the 'coons. It is simply placed in baits and distributed on a 750-acre study site. Within 10 days, over 90 percent of the baits had been consumed. Pretrial laboratory inoculations in over 40 species of mammals and birds show a high degree of safety to target and non-target animals. Captive raccoons vaccinated with this product have developed a strong protection against rabies.

Field work on Parramore Island will continue for a year. If it proves safe and effective, an oral rabies vaccine may then combat the spread of rabies, thus protecting the public and both domestic and wild animals from the disease right number so that we may verify their authenticity. We will not publish anonymous letters. Send letters to The Dallas Post, P.O. Box 366, Dallas PA 18612.

John M. "Frosty" Anderson was Director of the Wildlife Department

from 1966 until his retirement in ect was in compliance with exist-But keep your fingers crossed. The Dallas Post encourages its readers to share their opinions with the community by writing a letter to the editor. All letters must be signed and include a telephone graze on iin the deep shade of the virgin forest. They were confined to the forest edge or to openings created by blow-downs or fire. Today raccoons have spread into Canada and throughout the vegetable gardens. Canada geese nest in backyard ponds throughout New England and New Jersey plus their original range in Canada. A breeding flock of Canadas can be established almost anywhere in the northern states. They have waste corn,

U.S. They find shelter in drainage tiles, outbuildings, and shade trees. They grow fat in the cornfields, vineyards, pecan groves and Raccoons, for example, back in the days when red men dominated North America, had to live in hollow trees, and scrounge up a meal on frogs, crayfish, berries and such. Getting groceries and a warm bed presented problems in wheat and rice to tide them over in the Midwest. They are common winter. Consequently, they were but unloved on golf courses. They Likewise, Canada geese nested even winter on the outskirts of mostly in Canada and had to make New York City, along the Saw Mill do with millet, smartweeds, and River Parkway, for example.

Because timber wolves were considered an enemy of the cattle and sheepmen, to say nothing of Little Red Riding Hood, they were wiped out over most of their entire range. The clever coyote, also an enemy of the sheepmen, survived an army of government trappers, hunters, and poison bait campaigns. And with the removal of his ancient competitor, the timber wolf, coyotes have spread across the lower 48, even into the Northeast. The white-tailed deer finds the shrubbery, fruit trees, alfalfa fields and No-Hunting signs much to his liking throughout Subur-increased markedly in urban areas of the mid-Atlantic states in the last decade, and because rabies can be fatal to pets and humans, the Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology, Philadelphia, PA, is testing a bioengineered oral rabies vaccine. The test is underway on Parramore Island on the eastern shore of Virginia.

raccoons. In areas where the paths of dogs, cats, cows, 'coons and humans cross and re-cross, any reduction in the incidence of rabies in the wild population makes our own habitat and that of our