Dallas Senior High band marches on

It's small but growing, and the Dallas Senior High School Band has even won a few prizes in recent competitions.

The band is made up of students in grades 9 through 12 and begins its activities in the summer, preparing for the football and marching band seasons. The marching band includes a visual ensemble commonly called the Band Front or Color Guard. Student leadership for the current year is made up of Eric Clothier, drum major, and band front co-leaders Jeri Searfoss and Megan Wega. Todd Hunter is band director.

This past fall the Dallas percussion section distinguished itself by winning first place in the Group I competition at the Tournament of Bands championship held in Nanticoke. The band also performed for the Philadelphia Phillies last year. In addition, the band gives parade performances, special appearances and travels to festivals in other states. A jazz band will be added in 1991 and plans trips to Ocean City, Maryland and Jackson, New Jersey.

During the winter months instrumentalists refine their musicianship via concert music, giving at least one holiday concert and a full concert in the spring. Band member Eric Clothier represented Dallas at the Pennsylvania Music Educators Ass'n District 9 band festival in January.

The band is supported by the school district's faculty and staff and by the Band Parents Association, which raises funds used to purchase equipment and attend events. Anyone interested in the band may call Cathy Moss at 696-3567 for more information.

Dallas Scholarship Bowl students applauded

College Misericordia recently congratulated members of the Dallas High School Scholarship Bowl team for their success in the WNEP-TV Super 16 Scholarship Bowl program, which concluded Feb. 2. The seven-member team defeated Bishop Neumann in its first round and later lost to Bloomsburg High School in the second round. Misericordia, one of four sponsors of the program, presented the team and supporting faculty and administration with Misericordia sweatshirts.

Fritzen to run for re-election to L-L board
