County candidates meet the public

By CHARLOT M. DENMON Staff Writer

Eight of the 17 judicial candidates running for judge of the Luzerne County Court of Common Pleas appeared at the Candidates Night sponsored by the Back Mountain Citizens Council and the Dallas Post May 8. Four candidates for Luzerne County Commissioner were also present and took their turns speaking to the audience.

Vice president of the Citizens Council Will Conyngham acted as moderator and first called on the judicial candidates to make introductory remarks.

Hugh Mundy, Jim Geddes, Joseph Giovannini, William Keller, Diane Katlic, Enid Harris, Edward Geist and Ann Lokuta each in turn listed his or her qualifications for the office.

Conyngham then called on the county commissioner candidates giving each five minutes to respond to a general question then he would ask them questions collected from the audience.

Jim McCarthy, Democrat, first spoke on the question presented by Conyngham, "What will you do in providing needs concerning the local municipalities?"

"Planning is an important issue and I don't see planning for everyone here as I did in Maryland. In order to employ someone with the necessary technical knowledge, Luzerne County has to pay those people more money. The county has to stop dragging its feet," McCarthy said.

Candidate Joseph 'Red' Jones stated that in order to address the issues that are the concerns of the people, commissioner must be a full-time position. Jones said he would like to form a caucus of three commissioners, the county's representatives and the senator as well as have good communication in all areas of the county.

Evelyn Albert spoke on leadership and her concern for needs of the county. She said she would work in open and county forums when needed. Like Jones, she said she would approach reform in the environment which is threatened by the diminution of wetlands, waste management, open space, and do something about waste reduction, re-use of products, recycling and other problems.

Edmund Sieminski stated he was originally from Scranton and was appalled at the mismanagement and lack of leadership in Luzerne County. He spoke about his experience in the military and state legislature, and his time working with the Wilkes Small Business Development program. He contended Luzerne County needs leadership and he and his running mate Albert could provide that leadership.
