Campbell, Pryor to take part in writing project

Dallas area residents Ellen Campbell, a teacher at Lake-Lehman Senior High School, and Gert Pryor, a teacher at Tunkhannock Senior High School, were invited to participate as Fellows in the Northeastern Pennsylvania Writing Project Summer Institute, hosted by Wilkes University June 24 through July 12.

The annual three-week course focuses upon current research and literature in an effort to enhance the teaching of English composition. Summer Fellows are drawn from all levels of instruction - elementary school, junior and senior high school, college and university - and from fields other than English.

Formed locally over three years ago by the Northeastern Pennsylvania Writers Council, the Project is part of a nationwide network held at over 165 sites. Although federal funding is anticipated, the Institute currently operates on a 1988 grant from the Bay Area Writing Project, and subsequent supplemental grants from the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

A follow-up celebration is planned for mid-August for the distribution of an anthology, the presentation of position papers, and the discussion of consulting plans.
